Children on the Desert
The Horned Toad Fights
To Get Rich, Enrich Others
Ask DuPont, Sloan, Raskob

— By Arthur Brisbane —

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

HODGE, CALIF., MARCH 15—On this beautiful California desert, fertile as the Nile valley, when water is applied, you see interesting things. At half past seven this morning, along the desert highway, about every half mile children were waiting for the omnibus to take them to high school at Barston. The motor bus runs the 40-mile trip daily, at public expense.

Another omnibus takes the smaller children to the new public school at Hodge, and the public pays for that. A small boy of ten near Helendale sat with his sister in an old little car, waiting for the high school bus. When it comes he returns to his father's homestead, back on the desert, and takes the other bus to primary school. First, each day, he drives his sister to the high school motor line. Those children want education, the State of California gives it to them in rich cities an far out on the desert, and that is the top of America.

Not going to high school, but extremely busy, four miles back on the hot ground, was a horned toad, shaped like your hand, not quite as long or wide, his head, big as a nickel, protected him with irregular little horns sloping backwards. According to British law as laid down in Blackstone, he retreated until he could go no farther before resorting to deadly extremities. Then he fought, with an unmistakable "your life or mine" expression. Raising himself as high as possible on the ends of his short legs, always turning his comical, harmless little horns toward the enemy, he flew at the black shoe five times his size, bit the toe a dozen times, and savagely fought a small stick used for painless investigation. Turn him over and he righted himself, like a flash. Marvelous little fighter with terrific energy, taken from the hot sun and an insect diet, he was more fearless than Bismarck. Bismarck said: "We Germans fear God and nothing else."

That horned toad fears nothing. If all the legions of angels and archangels marched against him, he would bite their toes or wings.

He was a proud toad when the enemy retreated, leaving him in possession of the desert. For some time he stood, angry, on tiptoe, then resumed his insect hunting. In the eyes of eternity his victory was as important as that of Waterloo or Wagram.

By the way, don't let any one persuade you to buy acres or lots on the Mojave desert unless you have thousands to spend on water and other development, and be especially suspicious of anyone trying to sell you land by quoting things said by this writer. This is a good place if you have plenty of money, or are willing to work like a slave for small returns. It is no place for the little man to make his investment.

The above in reply to questions.

Some worthless land has been sold on the strength of references to the desert in this column.

To get rich yourself, make other men rich. If a man catches six fish for you, let him keep one. If he earns $10 for you, let him keep one—it pays Salaries, no matter how big, cannot stimulate men as profit-sharing does.

General Motors, with Dupont and Sloan at the head know that mere salaries are not enough, do not bring out 100 per cent of what a man has in him They urged their important men, eighty of them, to buy General Motors stock on credit, then work to make it valuable. They made it easy to get credit to buy the stock. John J. Raskob, head of the finance committee, who was earning $5 a week not long ago, knew how to manage that.

The eighty executives, great and small, bought General Motors stock that is now worth $217,000,000 more than it cost and every one of them is a millionaire, even the less important executives, that invested only $25,000 of their own. "The men having an interest in the great company worked their heads off for success," says Mr. Raskob.

Chaplin Wins $75,100 Verdict in Suit Over "The Kid"

New York, March 16 (INS)—Charlie Chaplin, film comedian, was richer by $75,100 today.

This amount was awarded him by a jury before Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente, following his suit against the First National Exhibitors Circuit, Inc., and the First National Producers' Company, for royalties on one of his pictures, "The Kid."

Chaplin, through his attorneys, brought a suit, claiming that from 1920 to 1925 the companies owed him $50,000, with interest, made on the picture in foreign countries.

STOCKS ON RAMPAGE

New York, March 16 (AP)—The stock market started on another wild rampage today under the leadership of General Motors, which was bid up six points to a new high record at 169.

Specialties reported to harbor a large short interest were again advanced in violent fashion, more than a score gains running from five to fifteen points. Trading continued at a feverish pace, with the 2,500,000-share mark passed before the end of the third hour.

While the increase of more than $50,000,000 in brokers' loans was a cause of some uneasiness in conservative banking quarters, it failed

BOTH BIG PARTIES IN 'SLUSH' SECRECY PACT

Chicago, March 16 (AP)—Testimony that the treasurers of both the Republican and Democratic national committees agreed late in 1923 to refrain from making any report of campaign contributions and expenditures for that year was given today to the Senate Teapot Dome sub-committee.

The witnesses were Iri G. Hipsley and A. V. Leonard, associates of the late Fred W. Upham, Republican treasurer, who declared Upham had told them Wilbur C. Marsh of Iowa, then in charge of the finances of the Democratic national organization, had urged that no returns be made for 1923 since none was required by law as there was no national campaign during that year.

Both Hipsley and Leonard quoted Upham as having said Marsh told him the Democrats had a large deficit to make up and expected to get

HUNT FOR HINCHLIFFE IN MAINE WOODS AFTER GUIDE HEARS AIRPLANE

Once more today hope that Capt. Walter Hinchliffe and the Hon. Elsie Mackay might still be alive was revived, when a Maine guide reported that he and his wife had seen a plane soar over the woods 25 miles north of Greenville and then apparently go down into the snow-patched forest.

The guide's story was made stronger when Postmaster William H. Cole of Kokadjo, 20 miles northwest of Greenville, reported to Deputy Sheriff Adelbert E. Rogers that Cole also saw a plane pass over at about 6 a. m.

Postmaster Cole declared the ship to be one of "brilliant color," because of the glint of the sun could not tell the exact hue. The plane was flying low and the motor was functioning apparently without a miss.

The spot indicated by the guide, [illegible] Dyer, is just [illegible] Brassau Lake, midway in the 40-mile stretch of woods between Jackman Station and the Middle Northwest Cove of Moosehead Lake.

Dyer told Selectman Ernest L.

ADMIRAL SUSPENDED IN BRITISH JAZZ 'MUTINY'

London, March 16 (INS)—The reported "mutiny" upon the British battleship Royal Oak in the Mediterranean simmered down today to a dispute over jazz music.

The incident was called to the attention of the House of Commons by Comdr. Bellairs, who said he understood a London newspaper was going to print a sensational dispatch that the captain and two officers of the Royal Oak refused to sail under their admiral and were carried as passengers as far as Gibraltar.

Fom a high naval authoity it was learned that the trouble arose over a dispute as to whether or not the battleship's band should play jazz music on board.

The Royal Oak is the flagship of Rear Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard, commanding the first battle squadron of the Mediterranean fleet. During a recent dance on board the warship Rear Admiral Collard ordered the band to play jazz music. Capt. K. G. B. Dewar, commanding the ship, refused to pass the order along to the band. This resulted in a dispute, in which Commander H. M. Daniels also became involved.

A court of inquiry decided to relieve all three from duty.

Jazz music—an importation from America—has been under fire from many quarters, but this was the first time it was accused of upsetting the

FENCE SAVES WOMAN IN CAR FROM WILD PLUNGE

Trapped in a sedan held from dropping down on the Boston & Albany tracks only by a wire mesh fence, Mrs. Catherine T. Johnson of Woodland road, Auburndale, narrowly escaped injury and possible death following a crash today in Newtonville.

Mrs. Johnson's car was in collision at Putnam and Margin sts. with a truck driven by James W. Daniels of Galen st., Watertown.

The crash spun the sedan around and shot it into the fence running along the high embankment above the railroad tracks. Several iron posts snapped, but the strong safety mesh held the car with front wheels out in space and only the rear wheels on the embankment.

Mrs. Johnson was taken from her precarious perch by Patrolman William Kiley and passersby. She, as well as the truck driver, escaped injury.

FEAR DISMASTED HUB BOAT WAS FIRED UPON; CREW OF 23 IN PERIL

Mystery today surrounded the reported disabling of the Boston fishing schooner Morning Star, whose captain and crew of 22 men were said to be in grave peril off Chatham.

Following receipt of a wireless message from the steamship Phoenix, reporting the Morning Star in great need of assistance, the Coastguard destroyer Conyingham and the revenue cutter Morrell were despatched to the scene and three hours later nothing further had been heard from them.

The Phoenix message gave no details, but following a statement from Chatham that the Morning Star was dismasted, a persistent report circulated about the water front that the schooner had been fired on.

Coast guard officials were unable to account for their failure to hear from the Conyingham and Morrell, after both vessels had been allowed plenty of time to reach the position of the disabled fisherman, which was given as [illegible] southeast of Chatham.

The first word of the Morning Star's plight was received from the Phoenix, stating the schooner needed a revenue cutter at once and giving her position. The Phoenix captain said he was proceeding on his course, but concluded:

"Schooner wants help."

Word was flashed to the cutter

FULLER'S SECRETARY CALLS GOODWIN 'LIAR'

Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin was flatly designated as a liar today by Herman A. MacDonald, secretary to Governor Alvan T. Fuller.

The Governor's secretary accused Goodwin of lying in connection with his charge that MacDonald was one of several men who worked for the former registrar's downfall and his being ousted from office.

"The ex-registrar must be getting desperate," said MacDonald, "and, having had little regard for the truth in the past, he has less now. His tirade concerning me is a mass of lies. He knows it. If what he says is true, there should be a legislative investigation."

Whil eMacDonald was thus retaliating against the former registrar, Thomas A. Niland, former representative from East Boston, was delivering a letter to the Governor's office, asking for sifting of the charges made by Goodwin, especially

WALSH WOULD GRILL MARSH ON DEMOCRAS' FUNDS

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Senator Walsh, Montana, prosecutor of the Senate oil investigation, said today he would ask that Wilbur Marsh, former Democratic national treasurer, be called for hearing in connection with testimony that Marsh entered an agreement to withhold campaign fund reports of 1923. The Montana Senator said, however, he would take no immediate action awaiting action at Chicago. Marsh is in Waterloo, Ia.

RUM 'PADLOCK BILL' SIGNED BY FULLER

Governor Fuller today signed the so-called Padlock bill, which permits the closing for one year of buildings where there have been three convictions of illegal liquor selling within three years.

The action of the governor spelled the second victory within as many days for the dry forces of the state.

Yesterday the Supreme Court, in answer to a request from the House, decided that the liquor referendum on the repeal of the 18th Amendment would be unconstitutional, because the question would be neither an "act" or a "measure" within the meaning of the initiative amendment.

The Padlock bill, as signed, is the result of two petitions filed by Representative Elmer Spear of Everett and the Massachusetts Civic League. It had the backing of Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson.

MYSTERY PLANE IN MAINE STARTS NEW SEARCH FOR HINCHLIFFE

How Wire Fence Saved ∞ Car Dangling Over Bank

FEAR CRASH IN DEEP WOODS

Dean of Greenville he sighted the plane at 6 a. m. yesterday. Hearing the drone of a motor, he rushed out of his cabin with his wife. The plane was just disappearing in a northwesterly direction—and then the motor noise faded and the plane went below the line of trees as if descending.

The selectman promptly reported the guide's story to officials of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, whose line passes through Greenville, and in turn the word was forwarded to the Canadian Legation.

Canada notified the State Department at Washington today that a searching party, composed of north woods guides and Maine lumbermen, had started the long beat through the frozen woods to the lonely spot.

Selectman Dean told the Boston Evening American today over the long-distance telephone that Dyer did not note whether the plane was a biplane or a monoplane, and declared merely that his glimpse of the ship was but a fleeting one. It was the first airplane Dyer had ever seen over the section, he said.

The Hinchliffe-Mackay plane, a Stinson-Detroiter monoplane of the same type used by Brock and Schlee in their flight from Newfoundland to Japan, carried gasoline, it was estimated, for 50 hours flying.

When the plane was sighted at Greenville, just 50 hours and 20 minutes had elapsed since Capt. Hinchliffe and Miss Mackay hopped off from the field near London.

The sudden descent of the plane just after the 50-hour period was taken as a hopeful sign and as an indication that the plane might have been the Hinchliffe-Mackay plane, and that it ran out of petrol at the calculated time.

NAVY PROMISES AID.

Postmaster Cole said that the ship disappeared from his view while it was still flying strong. If maintaining the same direction, the plane would have passed over or near Greenville, he said.

A careful check of all places where planes are known to go out over the Maine woods revealed that only one ship has been in the vicinity regularly in the past two months. This is a plane that has been mapping out an air line between Montreal and Halifax.

The mapping plane was not in the air yesterday, however.

Meanwhile today, in the hunt for the missing monoplane, transatlantic liners were asked by radio to keep a sharp lookout for wreckage of the plane, in theory that it might have been forced down into the water.

From Cherbourg, France, came a dispatch that passengers landing from the White Star liner Majestic, completing a run from New York, declared that if Capt. Hinchliffe and Miss Mackay succeeded in flying as far as mid-Atlantic, they must have run into the same snowstorm through which the Majestic passed.

From Washington, Secretary of State Kellogg sent a message of "anxiety and sympathy," through Ambassador Houghton in London, to the families of the lost fliers. The message said:

"You may inform the families of the pilot and passenger the Navy will lend all possible assistance in locating the missing airplane, although unfortunately there are few naval vessels in northern waters at this time."

LORING TO GIVE HIS $100,000 TO EMPLOYES

Homer Loring accepted no compensation from the Boston & Maine Railroad during the four years in which he directed its rehabilitation.

Moreover, when the directors voted him $100,000 on his retirement recently, he accepted this gift only in order to establish a fund to be devoted to the general good of the railroad's employes.

These facts became known today, both Loring and the railroad directors having maintained secrecy about them. In their resolution accepting Loring's resignation, the directors declared that under his direction "there had been developed a new Boston & Maine Railroad."

In his reply, Loring declared: "The new Boston & Maine has been created by the courage and judgment of the entire board of directors and by the loyal efforts of the whole body of employes. So I am going to accept with sincere thanks your gift of $100,000 and establish with it a Boston & Maine employe's fund, the income to be administered by trustees for the general good of all the employes."

PLAN N. Y. QUIZ FOR READING ACCUSER

Atty.-Gen. Arthur K. Reading's original accuser, Hugh J. Monjar, of New York, who has expressed a sudden unwillingness to come here to testify before the Reading investigating committee, will in all probability be questioned in New York by Maj. Thomas H. Hammond, counsel for the committee.

This statement was made today by Chairman George F. James of the committee, who said the committee as a whole will not go to New York to question Monjar next week.

Monjar is former president of the Decimo Club, from which Reading is said to have received more than $25,000 in fees after giving it a clean bill of health to do business in this State.

It is generally believed among legislators that further effort will be made to get Monjar to come here to tell his story under oath.

He at first expressed keen willingness to testify here and his change of front was a distinct surprise. The investigating committee has no power to summon him here, nor can it put Monjar under oath while he is being interviewed in New York.

COAST GUARDS RUSH TO AID 23 ON SCHOONER

Morrell, cruising outside of Cape Cod, and later the Conyingham was ordered to the assistance of the schooner also. Meantime the Chatham coastguard station sent a laconic message to Boston that the Morning Star had lost one of her masts.

As weather conditions outside were good, it was impossible for the schooner's owners, O'Hara Brothers, of this city, to figure out how she had been dismasted unless in a collision or shot at.

ADD TO MYSTERY

While further details were eagerly awaited, the two coast guard vessels apparently proceeded to the rescue, but three hours later had not been heard from, which added to the mystery.

The Morning Star carries a complement of 23 men, including the captain, and is one of a fleet of fishing craft owned by O'Hara Brothers.

CONVENT CLUE IN SMITH CASE FALLS FLAT

Quebec, Que., March 16 (INS) — A report that Miss Frances St. John Smith, missing 19-year-old Smith College student, had entered Bellevue convent was proved untrue today.

The report was based upon assertions by a Canadian Pacific Railway conductor and a taxicab driver that they hd seen a girl whom they believed was Miss Smith.

The mother superior of the convent said the conductor and taxicab driver had evidently confused another American girl, Miss Peggy Eudy of New York, with Miss Smith.

Miss Eudy, who is 17 and who resembles Miss Smith somewhat, returned from New York after the Christmas-New Year holiday just about the time the railway employe and the chauffeur believed they saw Miss Smith. She has been living at Bellevue convent four years.

According to the conductor Miss Smith was well supplied with money and traveled to Quebec. The taxicab driver said that the girl he believed was Miss Smith had gone to a convent in or near Quebec.

Carves His Brand on Girl to Show Love, Now He's in Jail

Baltimore, Md., March 16 (INS)—Pedro Ganna, 22-year-old Lothario, cut his initials on the forehead of a 16-year-old girl he brought here from Atlantic City February 15, and today he was jailed for one year by Magistrate Johannsen.

The girl, Marie Thomas, with the scars defining the letters "P. G.," appeared in court against Pedro.

"Because he wanted to show his love," was the reason given by Ganna, who told the court the branding was done with her consent. The girl denied this.

Ganna showed a letter "M" he had cut on his own breast.

Police charge he slashed her face with a knife at Boylston and Washington sts. and then fled. He was later arrested by police of Station 4. The girl was employed as soda fountain clerk at a Malden department store and lived with her half-sister, Mildred Hummenwell, at 671 Tremont st., where Neville also roomed.

The defendant and the victim kept company for some time but parted recently following a disagreement, according to Miss Hummenwell. Both girls come from Portland, Dame Fashion's Latest Decree: ∞ 'Must Be a Dimple in Every Knee' ∞ Means Health and Better Sceneree!

NOT DIFFICULT

Rosette, premiere dancer at the Metropolitan, shows in these poses that to meet fashion's edict for dimpled knees is not a really strenuous undertaking at is seems after one has practiced it often enough. But until then it is fairly hard.

GIVES KNEE ADVICE

Rosette, the petite dancer at the Metropolitan this week, gives some sage advice on how girls may keep their legs in trim.

TRY THIS DAILY

The idea is not to bend the hinges of the knees. The exercise strengthens the legs and makes dimples come where they are wanted.

MORE DIFFICULT THAN IT LOOKS

This exercise also keeps the muscles of the back in shape and teaches one to hold the shoulders erect. It's an excellent way to keep from feeling old, declares the winsome young dancer, who goes through the exercise daily.

KICKING AT NOTH ING BUT BEAUTY

Rosette, who has won much favor this week with Boston audiences at the Metropolitan, says this is part of her daily dozen or so The legs should be extended straight up to their limit stretch. This gets the kinks out of the muscles and it will grow dimples on knees that should have them.

THAT'S ALL; NOW FOR A REST

After the exercise, the dancer rests, She urges exercise the first thing in the morning and the last thing at night to keep in perfect trim and also plenty of rest in between and at night.

39 RESCUED AT 2-ALARM FIRE IN CHELSEA

Thirty-one children and eight adults were helped to the street by rescuers today in a two-alarm fire that swept through the tenement at 604 Washington ave., Chelsea.

Many of the children, panic-stricken by the smoke that filled all the corridors, were carried to safety in the arms of policemen and firemen.

Policemen, who quickly joined Patrolman John S. O'Neil at the scene of the fire, after O'Neil discovered the blaze and gave the alarm, ran through the house pounding on the doors to awaken the occupants, all of whom were in bed at the time.

The fire started in a store on the ground floor, owned by Alfonzo Lonzo, who, with his wife and seven children, was among those led to safety from the house above the store.

Fire Chief Hudson ordered a second alearm as soon as he reached the scene and later he ordered an investigation to determine the cause.

Besides the Lonzo family, those rescued included the families of Frank O'Neil, John Sororetti, owner of the building, and Angelo Passera.

EX-RAJAH WON NANCY IN MUTE COURTSHIP

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 16—Tukojirao Holkar, Indian Prince and former Maharajah of Indore, who is to marry Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., in India tomorrow, won his American bride-to-be through a strange courtship of silence, it was revealed today by European friends of the ex-ruler of Indore.

The ex-Marajah's love song, his friends said, was one without words and music that only he and his fiancee could hear and understand.

This strange romance, which began in the United States, shifted to Europe when both happened to be visiting here at the same time. To his intimates in a select circle of Orientals and Europeans the Indian Prince was known as a very diffident man.

SILENT FOR HOURS

A woman member of this little group, whose title is scarcely known in America but whose rank equals that of the former Maharajah, gave interesting details of the courtship to International News Service today.

JURY BELIEVES HER

It took a jury only six minutes in Manchester, N. H., to decide that Stuart A. Benway, 54, was not entitled to $10,000 heart balm on his charge that Mrs. Doris Emerson, 34-year-old widow had jilted him.

BYRD'S FRIEND IS NO DUPE FOR HUB SLICKERS

Out of the North, which was 40 below, and into the white light's glare, came Clifford Franklin of Toronto, Canada, musher extraordinary, to complete arrangements to accompany Commander Richard E. Byrd on his prospective dash to the South Pole.

It being his first visit to Boston, and having some spare time on his hands, the outlander decided to stroll about, hither and yon, looking over the sights of the city and wondering at the haste of the citizens.

Eventually he fell in with two affable strangers, and when they suggested a little coin matching, Franklin acquiesced and lost his entire bankroll, but being of the stern, tight-lipped type, he refused to run whining to the police or to Commander Byrd. Instead the musher got himself a job washing dishes in a Back Bay hotel, devoting his spare time to seeking the men who had fleeced him.

In time his keen eyes, trained to spot snowshoe rabbits at a distance of five miles or something like that, lighted on a man whom he claimed was one of his victimizers. Like a wolf springing at its prey, Franklin leaped at the man, and held him in an iron grasp. This was in Cambridge st.

Sergt. Lawrence T. Waitt arrested the man, who was arraigned in Municipal Court today, charged with the larceny of $45 from Franklin and with having a hypodermic needle in his possession. The case was continued for one week. He gave his name as Harry L. Duvenick.

PEDLAR HELD AS SMUGGLER OF DIAMONDS

A pedlar of cheap jewelry in Lynn was today arrested by Boston customs authorities as an alleged smuggler of diamonds and pearls worth thousands of dollars.

S. A. Ebish Hussian of Walnut st., Peabody, the man in custody, arrived in Lynn a few days ago from Egypt after an absence abroad of nearly a year and his arrest on an old larceny charge by Lynn police led to the smuggling complaint.

A search of his clothing at the Lynn station by Inspector Thomas Remson disclosed Hussian had concealed in the lining of his vest 53 large, uncut diamonds and four pearls.

Remson immediately informed Deputy Collector of Customs Thomas Finnegan at Boston of his "find" and he, together with Deputy Collector Owen McKenna and Inspector John H. Kahler went to Lynn early today to interrogate Hussian.

On the old charge of larceny of a pearl stickpin, alleged to have been committed before his departure for Europe, Hussian today in the Lynn District Court was remanded in custody in default of bail for a hearing later.

The Lynn authorities turned him over to the Boston customs officers, who brought him to Boston for arraignment on the smuggling complaint before U. S. Commissioner E. C. Jenney.

Woman Identified

The woman found wandering in a dazed condition on Boston Common was identified at the City Hospital by relatives as Nellio Costello, 62, a domestic.

S-4 IS READY TO BE RAISED ON SUNDAY

The submarine S4, sunk after collision with the coastguard destroyer Paulding off Cape Cod in December, will be brought to the surface on Sunday, if weather conditions are favorable, according to announcement today by Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the first naval district.

The submarine will be sent to the surface through the inflation of huge pontoons, now on either side of her steel hulk, 102 feet below the surface.

Caught between the stern of the naval tug Wandank and the bow of the sister ship Sagamore, the S4 will be towed into the Charlestown Navy Yard approximately 20 hours after she first appears on the surface. Twelve hours of the 20 will be consumed on the trip from Provincetown, around the coast line, to Boston.

The U. S. S. Bushnell will precede the Wandank, S4 and Sagamore, with the U. S. S. Falcon, flagship of the rescue and salvage squadron since December 18, bringing up in the rear. The U. S. S. Iwana will make the trip up with the convoy in case her aid is needed.

The operations at Provincetown will continue in the charge of Capt. Ernest King, who relieved Rear Admiral Frank Brumby, shortly after the naval court inquiry into the sinking was concluded.

In the forward torpedo compartment of the S4 are the bodies of the six men who died after several days at the bottom of the sea. The bodies of two others of the 40 men whose lives were lost in the submarine, are also in the interior of the steel hull.

3 BRITISH NAVY OFFICERS OUT OVER 'JAZZ'

iron-bound discipline of the British Navy.

All 3 Officers Suspended After Court of Inquiry

London, March 16 (AP)—Three British naval officers, including a rear admiral, have been suspended from duty as an outgrowth of a mysterious incident at Malta aboard the battleship Royal Oak, flagship of the Mediterranean fleet, says an official admiralty communique issued today. It reads:

"A court of inquiry has been held at Malta by order of the commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean station to investigate certain disciplinary matters in which Rear Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard, Capt. Kenneth G. B. Dewar and Commander H. M. Daniel were involved.

"As a result the three officers were suspended from duty by the commander-in-chief.

"Since the First Lord (W. C. Bridgeman) made his statement in the House of Commons today, he has ascertained that Rear Admiral Collard's flag has not been transferred to another ship, as he had inferred from an earlier telegram, but has been 'struck' and that he is still at Malta."

Captain Dewar and Commander Daniel, who left Malta early this week, arrived in London last night and immediately called at the Admiralty, which they visited again today. Rear Admiral Collard remains at Malta pending an inquiry.

DORCHESTER GIRL, GONE 2 DAYS, SOUGHT BY MOTHER

Mrs. Alice B. Funke of 75 Maxwell st., Dorchester, today asked the Boston Evening American to assist her in locating her daughter, Alice C. Funke, who has been missing since Wednesday.

Miss Funke has been ill and is believed to be suffering from loss of memory. She is described as being five feet four inches tall, light complexion, 134 pounds weight, with short dark brown hair and hazel eyes. She wore a black seal coat with an artificial pink on the shoulder, black dress with a string of red beads, black hat with black lace drooping from one side, gray stockings and black shoes.

LOBBY PAYROLL IS ATTACKED BY GARNER

Washington, March 16 (AP)—The payroll for lobbyists in Washington was declared today by Representative Garner, Democrat, Texas, to be larger than that for members of Congress.

Garner said he deemed it an honor for a man to be chosen to represent a group of persons in legitimately opposing or urging the passage of legislation, either for pay or otherwise, but that he did not welcome "the men who house themselves here in Washington and hide their purpose."

The Texan said usually the legitimate lobbyist was better informed on legislation than other men, and their views were valuable.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, asserted there were between 200 and 300 associations in Washington which "fleece the public by representing themselves as able to influence legislation."

War-Time Blockade Must Remain If Dry Law Is Kept

Washington, March 16 (INS)—A war-time blockade will surround the United States as long as prohibition stays on the statute books.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, in charge of dry activities, announced today after an inspection of the situation in the southeast, and scanning reports from other districts, that Coast Guard and land forces would guard the seacoasts and international borders from now on.

BANK CASHIER IS SHOT BY ILLINOIS BANDITS

Madison, Ill., March 16 (AP)—Elmer Baltz, 41, cashier of the First National Bank, was shot and dangerously wounded and Frank Smith, bank watchman, was shot in the hand today by four robbers who crowded Baltz's car to the curb and escaped with between $23,000 and $25,000.

2 BIG PARTIES IN SECRET OIL 'SLUSH' PACT

some large contributions which it was not desirable to make public.

HULL DENIED IT

Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who was chairman of the Democratic committee at that time, has testified the national organization of his party had no large deficit then and had received no Liberty bonds from Harry F. Sinclair or others connected either with the lease of the naval oil reserves or the Continental Trading Company.

Some of the oil profits Sinclair turned over to Will H. Hays in November, 1923, to help wipe out the deficit of the Republican National committee in advance of the 1924 campaign.

Hipsley told the investigators he had not told of this conversation with Upham when he appeared in Washington because he had not been asked about it.

Leonard testified recollection of the conversation had come back to him while he was listening to Hipsley's testimony.

Turning to the bank account of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil of Indiana, the sub-committee failed to find any trace of a $500,000 deposit by Stewart in the Continental & Commercial National Bank at the time of the disposition of the profits of the Continental Trading Company, or at any time since 1921.

"GO-BETWEEN" ILL

William H. Gilkes, assistant cashier of the bank, was directed to inform the committee whether any account in this sum had been opened in the bank after 1921 and also whether Stewart had a safety deposit box in that Bank.

The investigators failed to obtain the testimony of James P. Connery, who, committee records show, acted as intermediary between Harry F. Sinclair and Will H. Hays when the lessee of Teapot Dome returned $85,000 to the former Republican national chairman.

This was after Hays had given this sum to Sinclair to complete the return of the $160,000 which the oil operator advanced to the Republican organization in 1923 to secure the party deficit.

Both Connery's physician and his brother testified that Connery was too ill either to appear before the committee or to give his testimony at home.

Ralph V. Sollitt, secretary-treasurer of Lord & Thomas, an advertising firm headed by Albert D. Lasker, testified he had no knowledge of Mr. Hays' efforts to raise funds in the campaign of 1920 when he was assistant to the former chairman. Sollitt said he had charge of the New York office of the Republican National Committee at that time.

A contribution of $6000 was made in 1924, testified R. P. Lamont, president of the American Steel Foundries, but he never received a promise of any sort nor any Liberty bonds.

Brewster O. K.'s Borah's Plan and Contributes $100

Augusta, Me., March 15 (AP)—Governor Ralph O. Brewster today telegraphed Senator Borah, indorsing his efforts to raise a "repudiation fund" of $160,000 to pay Harry F. Sinclair and thus "free" the Republican party from connection with the oil operator.

Governor Brewster also forwarded his personal check for $100 as a contribution to the fund.

Borah Gets Quick Response in Plan to Repay Oil "Slush"

Washington, March 16 (INS)—Senator Borah (R.), Idaho, announced today he had received an enthusiastic response from all over the country to his appeal to Republicans to contribute to an "indignation fund" to repay Harry F. Sinclair the $160,000 he donated to help wipe out the 1920 Republican national convention debt.

In a telegram to Borah, Senator Goff (R.), West Virginia, declared he would join with a group of 160 persons to contribute $1000 each to return "this revolting oil donation." Goff is in Atlanta recuperating from an illness.

Guiseppi Greco pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Fosdick in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today. Greco killed Mary Novillo last November.

'GOODWIN STATE SALARY RAISE BILL' LOSES

It was virtually "Fuller vs. Goodwin" today when the House voted on the State employes' salary bill, and the Governor's side won, but the Goodwin forces displayed remarkable strength.

While speaking in favor of the bill before a legislative committee former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin uttered the caustic words that brought matters to a head between him and the Governor and caused his removal.

The bill, sponsored by the Commonwealth Service Association of State employes, came before the House on an adverse report by the committee. Representative Herbert J. Kelly of Worcester, minority leader, made a motion to substitute the bill for the adverse report.

On rollcall there were 74 for substitution, 119 opposed. Had those favoring substitution prevailed, the Goodwin bill would have been before the House for a vote, but as it was, the adverse committee report was accepted.

Members of the House were advised to reduce their own salaries from $1500 to $500 by Representative Ashton, Republican, of Fall River, who was for substitution. He said the administration failed to keep faith with State employes and in some instances had reduced salaries. Referring to the Goodwin-Fuller controversy, without mentioning names, he said: "Where there's smoke, there must be some fire."

Won't Wed Kaiser's Son

Berlin, March 16 (AP)—Mrs. Clara Bielken Schwarz, widow of Joseph Schwarz, the opera singer, and daughter of the Hawaiian coffee king, denied today a Baden-Baden story in the Neue Berliner Zeitung saying that she was to wed Prince Eitel Friedrich, son of the former Kaiser.

Sentenced to Aid Boys He Made Fatherless

Muskegon, Mich., March 16 (AP)—By edict of Probate Judge Ruth Thompson, John Yokubones, 16, must contribute to the support of two small boys he made fatherless when his car struck and killed Floyd Torrey here two weeks ago.

Taken before the woman judge, Yokubones, who faced the possibility of prosecution on a negligent homicide charge, was "sentenced" to visit the fatherless children, four and six years old, once a month for two years, and to pay $400 toward their support. She refused to recommend a warrant charging the youth with homicide.

Nine young people were in the car which struck and killed Torrey. Five other youths in the party have volunteered to help the children, whose mother has disappeared.

"RIDICULOUS!" SAYS LEWIS OF MARRIAGE RUMORS

Rome, March 16 (AP)—Sinclair Lewis, American author, informed the Associated Press today that any rumor that he was engaged to be married was ridiculous.

FRENCH FAVORS $274,000,000 WARSHIP BILL

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Prospects of House approval of the $274,000,000 new warship construction program increased materially today when Chairman French of the appropriations committee, considering naval affairs, announced he proposed to support it.

French a year ago led an unsuccessful but close fight against a provision for funds to start construction on the last three of the eight cruisers authorized in 1924.

He said today that while he was not in entire accord with all provisions of the program he believed it represented as nearly as possible a cross section of various views and therefore would vote for it.

During his remarks he said also that the appropriations committee next week would report the annual Navy Department supply bill and that it would call for an expenditure of $287,000,000 for the navy during the next fiscal year.

Tattered Boy, Flood Hero, Saves Sister and Brother

Newhall, Cal., March 16 (INS)—Emerging, a tattered hero, from the chaos of the St. Francis Dam catastrophe, Louis Rivera, 12, walked into Newhall today, leading by the hands his sister Belle, 10, and brother Francis, 8, whom he rescued from the surging flood and sheltered in a canyon for three days and nights.

The three children, half starved, still wore their night-clothes, which were in shreds.

Seven other members of the family, including mother and father, perished.

402 DEAD AND MISSING IN FLOOD AREA

Santa Paula, Cal., March 16 (AP)—With the known death toll standing at 206, and 196 persons missing, a total of 402, several sets of investigators dug deeper into the available evidence today in an effort to unearth the cause of the St. Francis dam disaster.

Although two coroner's juries found the victims came to their death by drowning due to the breaking of the dam, they did not attempt to fix the blame. From two official sources, however, came reports that the foundation upon which the great structure was built was faulty.

The report of State Engineer Edward Hyatt, Jr., that "had the dam had a sufficiently strong foundation this great tragedy never would have happened," was echoed in a report by Ventura County Engineer Charles Petit.

LEE OFFICER ON TRIAL IN FATAL TUG CRASH

Arthur J. Love, former chief officer of the ill-fated steamship Robert E. Lee, who was on the bridge when she sank the tug Neponset in Buzzard's Bay on Dec. 12, went on trial on a charge of negligence before the Steamboat Inspectors at Appraiser's Stores today.

Love, whose connection with the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., was severed before the Lee piled up on Mary Ann rocks off Manomet, is charged with responsibility for the collision with the tug which sent the small craft to the bottom with a loss of two lives.

Questioned by Capt. Herman T. Parker, Love said he was on the bridge at the time of the crash, which he fixed at 10:30 p. m., with light winds prevailing and a slight haze. He said he sighted what he thought was a small boat five miles away, but later recognized it as a steamboat when he sighted the tug's red and green lights.

He admitted he did not sound a signal although recognizing there was danger of a collision. He explained there was plenty of light. The witness said he blew two long blasts two or three minutes before the crash and tw shrt blasts immediately preceding it.

Asked if he thought three minutes was sufficient time in which to manouvre the ship, Love replied: "Yes, under the circumstances." He said he did not order full speed astern until possibly a minute before the collision. Love said he had left the service of the company as a result of trouble in New York and not because of the accident.

Guy Emro, mate of the Neponset, said the collision occurred at 10:37, as his watch stopped at that time when he went overboard. He said he heard one whistle from the Lee when the craft were two miles apart, and the next was two short blasts when they were only 150 yars apart.

REVERE MAN INJURED; HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Abraham Marcus, 48, of Calumet st., Revere, sustained contusions and abrasions on the head and face and possible internal injuries when struck by an auto at North Shore rd. and Agawam st., Revere, today. Charles H. Jones of Fenno st., Revere, was the operator of the car, according to the police. Marcus was taken to the Chelsea Memorial Hospital.

TEST OF MAINE EXPORT POWER LAW FAVORED

Providence March 16—New England Council delegates were given a surprise today when members of the Maine group announced they had voted among themselves in favor of a test case to settle once for all the question of the constitutionality of the Maine law prohibiting exporting of power.

The effect of this prohibitory law has been widespread, but has been especially felt in New England. The cost of the proposed test case would be borne jointly by the state and power interests.

Another important contribution to the council session by a Maine delegate was the statement of Henry F. Merrill, state chairman, that advertising increased the business of hotels in that state 13 per cent last summer and a greater increase was expected this year.

Vermont provided another instance of New England enterprise when Thomas F. Flanagan, a Bostonian familiar with the Green Mountain State, declared that alert manufacturers had turned the great flood into a blessing.

"For every weak business that was forced to suspend because of the flood, six others got a fresh start, checked up on business, started out to seek new markets and will manufacture the goods wanted in these markets," he said.

BOOST NEW INDUSTRIES.

The council session, held in the ballroom of the Providence-Biltmore Hotel, is the tenth quarterly meeting.

President John S. Lawrence of Boston urged New England manufacturers to increase their participation in new and growing industries.

He urged co-operation with the nationwide economic survey under the direction of Secretary Hoover, and suggested a parallel survey in New England "to assist manufacturers to get into fields of industry most capable of expansion and to organize effectively to reach the most promising markets at home and abroad."

Participation in new and growing industries, he declared, would also provide employment for workers released from other industries.

"The rising costs of distribution make up one of the outstanding problems of the day," he said. "The statement is made that before the war the manufacturer received 60 cents of the consumer's dollar, and that he now receives but 40 cents.

"Now while distribution costs have been rising, costs of production have been falling. There have been enormous increases in output accompanied by actual decreases in the number of workers employed.

"What has been happening to the armies of workers released from industries in these recent years? The whole story is not known, but some facts have been established. For example since the war hotels, restaurants, etc., have absorbed an additional 500,000 persons. In the same period, an additional 750,000 have gone into automobile distribution and servicing. Radio trade and motion picture theatres have taken 125,000 each.

CO-OPERATE WITH HOOVER

"These three groups alone account for 1,000,000 persons—more than 2 per cent. of the total employed population of the United States.

"These are large matters worthy of the attention of members of the council in their bearing upon New England's development and prosperity. I believe we in New England are peculiarly affected by the changes that are taking place and have, therefore, most to gain in a study of them. I recommend that the council overlook no opportunity to co-operate with the Hoover committee."

Railroads are dividing their industrial development activities between attracting new industries to the territory they serve and assisting in the development of existing industrial shippers, E. L. Taylor of the New Haven railroad declared in an address.

SERVICE OF BANKS

"As a general proposition, banks in New England render services to their customers, communities and correspondents that compare favorably with those of banks elsewhere," asserted Robert Warren of the Boston firm of Freeland & Warren, Inc., which conducted a survey of bank practices for the council.

ONE-LEGGED DOCTOR GETS TO SNOWED-IN TOWN

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 16 (INS)—The snowbound village of Detour was once more in touch with the outside world today after an isolation lasting more than two weeks. Dr. John F. Deadman, driving a dog team to a sled laden with medicine and food, mushed quietly into the village early today, weary with the strain of a two-day journey of 60 miles. Dr. Deadman's achievement was remarkable in view of the fact that he has only one leg. A government transport plane was expected to hop off momentarily from here with 500 pounds of mail and 500 pounds of provisions. The plane will take two persons to the Soo where they will receive medical attention.

"AL" SMITH MAKES FIRST MOVE IN NATIONAL RACE

New York, March 16 (AP)—The New York Times says today that Gov. Alfred E. Smith has taken his first definite action to put himself forward as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

This consisted, the Times says, of certifying to the correctness of his name as printed on the proofsheet of the official Michigan ballot.

Elect Brookline Woman

Northampton, March 16 (AP)—Election of Margaret G. Palfrey, 1929, of Brookline as president of the Student Government Association of Smith College was announced today.

MAINE SURVEY REPORTED TO N. E. COUNCIL

Providence, March 16—Clarence C. Stetson of Bangor, chairman of the Maine Development Commission created by the last Legislature to collect and distribute information on the resources of the state, reported to the New England Council meeting that the commission is spending $30,000 for recreational advertising this year.

Reference will also be made to the agricultural, industrial and educational opportunities.

"There is a unity of purpose on the part of the people of Maine, and this is being shown to the outside world and bearing fruitful results," said Mr. Stetson. "Our commission, all of whose members are working without pay and are not even reimbursed for their traveling expenses, consists of five state officials and six private individuals appointed by the governor. It is a labor of love for the state that we are engaged in.

"A comprehensive survey of the state is now being made, the first of its kind ever undertaken in this country. We are making an educational survey in co-operation with the University of Maine, which is financing it for the state.

"A preliminary survey of agriculture has been made and will soon be ready for distribution in book form. A more comprehensive survey is to be made by the grange in co-operation with the University of Maine."

DANDRUFF

Not until the last vestige of dandruff is gone, can you be considered a fastidious person, acceptable socially

Checks dandruff . . . soothes the scalp

Don't put up with a humiliating case of dandruff, and the itching burning sensation of the scalp that usually accompanies it.

At the first sign of dandruff, douse Listerine on the hair full strength and massage the scalp thoroughly. Keep this treatment up systematically for several days.

You will be delighted to find your dandruff disappearing rapidly. And you will welcome that cool refreshing feeling that Listerine imparts to the scalp. For those few whose hair does not contain the normal amount of oil, the use of a little olive or castor oil after shampoo may prove an advantage.

It is a curious fact that in many cases this simple pleasant treatment has succeeded after complicated and costly ones had failed. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

CHARGE COAL DEALER WITH SHORT WEIGHT

A charge that he cheated two Revere widows receiving city aid, and gave them short weight in delivering coal, was made today in Chelsea court against Harry Benson of East Boston, driver for an East Boston coal company.

Complaint against Benson was made by Francis Chresenten, Revere sealer of weights and measures, who said he discovered short weights from 300 to 500 pounds—or from 30 to 50 per cent—on deliveries of 1000 pounds each, Judge Cutler continued Benson's case to March 23.

WANAMAKER'S ESTATE OVER 50 MILLION

Philadelphia, March 16 (AP)—An estate valued at $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 is disposed of in the will of Rodman Wanamaker, made public today.

The will creates a board of seven trustees who will hold in trust the "capital stock of John Wanamaker, Philadelphia," under which corporate name the Wanamaker store business was conducted.

These trustees are all Philadelphia men headed by William L. Nevin, vice-president of the Wanamaker store.

All financial questions and general policy of the business are to be decided by a majority of the trustees. All detail questions of management are to be decided by Mr. Nevin the "managing trustee."

$7,500,000 INSURANCE FUND.

The principal of the $7,500,000 insurance on the life of Mr. Wanamaker is to be held in trust for the benefit of Mr. Wanamaker's three children, Mrs. Hector Munn, Mrs. Gurney Munn and John Wanamaker, Jr., their children and grandchildren. It will be divided when the youngest grandchild is 21.

An industrial school for boys, to be known as the "John Wanamaker Free School of Artisans," is to be established with the income from a trust fund of $2,000,000.

Provision is also made for the support of his second wife, who was Miss Violet I. Cruger. She got a divorce in Paris on November 5, 1923, and is now the wife of Hope Brenckelton Viney of England.

TO PAY STORE DEBTS.

One of the important provisions is that providing a sinking fund, to be built up out of income, to pay all the debts and mortgages of the stores. To make certain that his heirs did not suffer financially in the meantime, Mr. Wanamaker provided an income of $100,000 a year for his children. This sum, it is understood, will be increased once the stores are cleared of debt. There is a $10,000,000 mortgage on the Philadelphia store, which owns all the stock of the New York store.

Originally, Mr. Wanamaker's sisters, Mrs. Norman McLeod and Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, were to be given 6 per cent income on $2,000,000 annually, but when Mrs. McLeod died the will was changed to give Mrs. Warburton $100,000 a year for life.

FUND FOR PRINCETON.

Each of the grandchildren is granted an annuity of $20,000. They are Gurnee Munn, Jr., Fernanda Munn, Rodman Arturo De Heeren, John Wanamaker, 2nd, and Fernanda Pauline Wanamaker. The sum of $25,000 is given for cancer research at the Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia.

If Princeton University should establish a school for business, the will provides that $15,000 shall be set aside yearly for 10 scholarships of $1500 each. Mr. Wanamaker was graduated from Princeton in 1886.

HUB GOOD-WILL PARTY SAILS TOMORROW

An elaborate program is being arranged by the various civic organizations in the countries to be visited by the goodwill cruise of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, which leaves Boston at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from Long Wharf.

The American Chamber of Commerce of Havana, Cuba; the Chamber of Commerce of Kingston, Jamaica; the Colon Board of Trade and Rotary Club of Colon; and the Panama Association of Commerce at Panama City are all making arrangements to fete the visitors from the north.

The visitors will be given an opportunity not only to visit the various historic spots in these countries but they will also be made to understand their commercial possibilities and given every facility to study them at first-hand.

William J. Fortune, vice-president of the National Shawmut Bank, will be the official head of the party. Fortune is recognized as an economic expert and it is his intention to act as guide, counselor and friend to the members of the party.

The Calamares, flagship of the Great White Fleet of the United Fruit Company, is making a special trip from New York in order to embark passengers from this city. It is expected she will reach Long wharf about 3 o'clock and as soon as passengers and baggage can be taken aboard she will sail immediately. Capt. Harry Spencer, formerly port captain of New York is in command. The ship will be decorated and special attractive and amusing features have been arranged for the south-bound trip.

STILLMANS PAY MILLION FOR CANADA LAND TRACT

New York, March 16 (AP)—The New York American in a dispatch from Saint Jacques de Grandes Piles, Que., says today that Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman of New York have purchased an area approximately 50 miles square to add to their holdings at Grande Anse, 50 miles north of Saint Jacques.

The tract has been purchased from various small holders and lumbering compapnies for conversion into the greatest private fish and game preserve in Canada. The expenditure is estimated at $1,000,000.

4 KILLED AS 10,000 POUNDS OF POWDER WRECK PLANT

Valley Falls, N. Y., March 16 (INS)—Four men were instantly killed, several were injured, and homes in nearby towns were damaged when three mills of the Hercules Powder Company, on the state highway between this village and Schaghticoke, exploded today.

Officials at the plant estimated that upwards of 10,000 pounds of black powder had exploded. The theory was advanced that sparks from the contact of the men's hammers with nails may have set off the powder.

STAGE SET FOR HINDU WEDDING OF U. S. GIRL

word," said the informant. "I have seen them that way on terraces at Cannes, Geneva, Anhalt and other places. The Indian's gaze was intense. Miss Miller's was more casual

"The manner of parting was extraordinary. The ex-Maharajah, while keeping his eyes intently upon those of his fiancee, would bend forward slightly and let his fingers rest lightly upon Miss Miller's wrist. At the contact he would rise abruptly and stride away."

This informant gave a different version of the couple's first meeting from that which has been published in American newspapers. According to the American version, the couple became acquainted while the one-time Maharajjah was traveling in the United States. The noblewoman said they met at Geneva. Here is her story:

MET IN GENEVA

"It was in Geneva about a year ago. He was strolling around the gaming room of the Casino when his eyes fell upon the tall, slender chestnut-haired girl. The effect was electrical. Turning to one of his three aides, he said: 'I must know her. I am madly in love with her.'

"The ex-Maharajah left the Casino and retired to his suite, probably to have one of his aides read poetry to him, as is his custom when in a romantic mood.

"The 'mute courtsnip' began the next day after a formal introduction had been arranged. Thereafter Miss Miller, a woman relative and the ex-Maharajah were frequently seen together. The former Mahajarah's first token of affection was a diamond studded watch and then a fiery solitaire set in a slender platinum ring."

Crowds Flock for Brilliant Hindu Wedding Tomorrow

Barwaha, India, March 16 (AP)—Devi Sharmista, the former Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, arrived here today for her marriage tomorrow. She came with her party from Nasik, where she acquired the Indian name and became a Hindu.

Crowds came from everywhere, including a large body of Dhangars—one of the lower castes including chiefly laborers—and Sharmista was welcomed with enthusiasm into the community.

Now that the American Girl's conversion has been accomplished the antipathy of ever the reactionaries is passing and all eyes were turned toward her weddng to Tukoji Rao, former Maharajah of Indore, tomorrow. Preparations were beng made for it on a princely scale.

Many nobles and friends of Tukoji Rao, invited to the ceremony, have arrived at Barwaha. It was understood that Col. Lambhate, senior member of the Holkar family, will give Sharmista away in marriage as he did in the case of the maharajah's second bride.

The city today had a gay appearance, jewelers, cloth merchants, dealers in curio and art works came from various parts of India, hoping that the guests would prove ready buyers.

Miss Miller was in the best of spirits and received numerous messages from various parts of India, particularly from Indore, wishing her long life and prosperity.

It is understood that both of Tukoji Rao's present wives have given their consent to the marriage. The senior maharanee has arrived here and the junior maharanee was expected to arrive later today.

AMERICAN'S BIG PLANE ON TOUR TO PACIFIC

Curtiss Field, N. Y., March 16 (INS)—The Toledo Leader-Ship, a six-passenger Stinson-Detroit monoplane, was scheduled to leave at noon today on the New York American's coast-to-coast air tour.

The plane will stop in forty cities in which there are aircraft and accessory plants, and data will be obtained regarding the advancement of the aircraft industry.

Capt. Gordon Smith, head of the New York American aeronautical department, will call on executives of these industries. He will be accompanied by Richard Wall, prominent business man and sportsman of Toledo, O. Wall will act as official observer for the national safety council.

A distinguished gathering, including Mayor James J. Walker of New York City, was to witness the take off today. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh inspected the huge golden winged monoplane here last night and pronounced it "fit as a fiddle."

Col. Lindbergh said he was especially interested in the plane's elaborate radio telegraph and telephone set. On this set a message will be sent to President Coolidge apprising him of the purpose of the 9000-mile flight.

RED CROSS GIRL

Helen Richardson, from Washington, D. C., home office, is attending disaster preparedness lecture course in Hub.

RED CROSS ASKS PREPAREDNESS

Describing in detail the organization of local disaster preparedness, Henry M. Baker, national director of disaster for the American Red Cross, addressed more than 200 delegates to the Workers' Training Institute sent by 100 New England Red Cross chapters, today.

This is one of eight such training courses offered throughout the country by the American Red Cross to workers, volunteer workers and student volunteers. It is the first in eight years.

Delegates are to be instructed in the various services of Red Cross for the next week in order that the work of the organization might become standardized and co-ordinated in the chapters and with the home office in Washington.

Mr. Baker will lecture for the next three mornings with information to the delegates on the first steps that should be taken in case of local disaster. He has served in the most recent disasters in Florida, Mississippi valley, Vermont and at Fall River.

Among the delegates are Miss Helen Richardson of the home office in Washington, D. C.; Miss Mildred Whiting, Burlington, Vt., worker; Mrs. Shirley Haraden, secretary of the Hancock County Chapter at Bar Harbor, Me.; Mrs. Charles B. Henry, Lincoln, N. H., and Mrs. Franklin Salisbury, Randolph, Vt.

This afternoon the canteen committee, of which Mrs. Francis Gray is chairman, served tea at the Boston Chapter in Newbury st.

B. & M. ASKS RIGHT TO SELL LAND IN W. END

Authority for selling land at the corner of Causeway and Beverly sts. to the B. & M. Terminal Building Company, containing approximately 45,292 square feet, was asked today by the Boston & Maine Railroad in a petition filed with the Public Utility Commission.

The B. & M. Terminal Company, President George Hannauer of the road disclosed in the petition, will contract to erect a freight distributing terminal and warehouse building. A hearing was set for next Tuesday forenoon at the State House.

DORCHESTER MAN IS HURT IN MAINE CRASH

Portland, Me., March 16 (AP)—Reuben Sandler of Dorchester, Mass., was on the danger list at Maine General Hospital and Harry T. Richardson of Auburn was seriously injured today when the former's automobile, while racing along the Gray rd. from Lewiston on a hurried trip to Boston, struck a depression, bounded into the air and crashed into a fence at South Gray.

Richardson was being given a "lift" while on his way to visit his mother here. Sandler's shoes were torn from his feet by the impact.

ANDREW HEADS SLATE FOR 6TH DISTRICT DELEGATES

Nomination papers for delegates and alternates to the Republican national convention from the Sixth Congressional district were filed today. Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester and J. Otis Wardwell of Haverhill are listed as delegates, with Evelyn F. Masury, Danvers, and Herman A. MacDonald, Beverly, alternates. The delegates are unpledged. MacDonald is secretary to Governor Fuller.

SOUTH BOSTON ALL SET FOR PARADE

Several hundred thousand people are expected to throng South Boston streets tomorrow along the route of the parade commemorating the 152d anniversary of the Evacuation of Boston.

Chief Marshal Timothy F. Maloney, U. S. N. (retired) is fortunate this year in that he has secured more regular army and navy detachments than in previous years. The arrival of the U. S. S. Utah in the South Boston drydock for repairs will greatly augment the naval forces in the parade.

The regulars will include the 13th Infantry, one of the best drilled and efficient outfits in the entire regular army, [illegible]. There will be a large detachment of sailors and marines from the navy yard and the sailors from the U. S. S. Utah.

Another feature of the parade will be the 101st Infantry, M. N. G., under command of Col. Arthur W. Desmond. The 101st Infantry is at top-notch strength. It is expected that every member of the outfit will be on parade.

T. P. Maloney

The parade will be strictly military, with detachments from American Legion Posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Veterans of the Civil and Spanish American Wars, cadets and boy scouts. Assisting the chief marshal will be John H. Lee, chief of staff; Sergt. Maj. F. X. Cotter, Adjutant; Past Commander Thomas Gould, [illegible] F. W. [illegible], officer, and Sergt. John E. Lee, aide-de-camp.

The parade will start promptly at 2 p. m. from Andrew sq. and pass over a long route through the district, the troops marching in column of platoons. The Governor, Mayor and other distinguished guests will review the parade from a stand at B st. and West Broadway. The chief marshal and staff will review the parade at St. Peter and Paul's, West Broadway, between Dorchester ave. and A st.

The parade proceeds along Dorchester st., to West Broadway, to [illegible] st., to West Fourth st., to G st., to Thomas pk., to East Sixth st., to [illegible] st., to East Fourth st., to Farragut rd., to East Broadway, to Dorchester av., the point of dismissal.

John H. Lee

A feature preceding the parade and setting a precedent will be the annual dinner of the South Boston Citizens' Association, which will be conducted this year for the first time the night before the parade, Friday, March 16. This arrangement was made by the committee so as not to interfere with the open house celebration in the district following the parade. In past years the dinner was in the evening following the parade.

The affair is taking place in the Elks Hotel and William H. [illegible], chairman of the committee, has limited the tickets to [illegible]. Among the speakers will be Lieut. Albert Hegenberger, U. S. A., a native son of South Boston, who spanned the Pacific by air; Congressman James A. Gallivan, Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, Maj. Gen. Edward L. Logan and others. Dancing will follow the speaking.

"and that is what made the company what it is."

This writer can testify that if you want to see a General Motors official, you can find him working in his office at 6.30 p. m. as easily as at any other time. They are not "clock watchers," having millions to watch. Employers take notice.

The census bureau says United States population, on July 1, next will be 120,013,000. At the end of this century, if births, deaths, immigration and health run along as at present, the population will be 260,000,000. If the larger per cent of that number know how to think, it will be quite a nation.

In the last eight years, population has increased 14,402,380. The annual arrivals of babies exceed by 1,000,000 the number of deaths. That is good news for the editor publishing an up-to-date paper. Bill Curley, formerly of Chicago, now of New York, used to say, "every birth is a new reader for my paper, every death of an old man means a reader forever lost to the opposition," and it was true.

A New York banker says, "Mr. Coolidge will run again. That good news is all around Wall street." Hundreds of bankers, and millions of ordinary citizens wish that the President would run in 1928, for a second elective term. But wishing does not change the President's mind. The White House says, "The President's two statements speak for themselves."

DENNY LIKELY TO APPEAR IN 'SHOWBOAT'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

LOS ANGELES, March 16—One's mind has to do a veritable [illegible] to keep up with Reginald Denny and his plans. One minute he is going on a personal appearance tour, another he is sailing for [illegible] to make pictures, and another he has been lent to Universal. I suppose all actors reserve the privilege of changing their minds but oh, Denny does change his so often. He keeps everyone who writes about him in a turmoil.

I don't see how he can do anything for awhile with the [illegible] to play the gambler in "The Showboat," which is an excellent role by Edna Ferber. With the success of [illegible] last year's Paul Whiteman [illegible], it looks as if Denny will be forced to stay right at Universal City and do his stuff.

Universal has the precedent of a successful musical comedy based on the 'Showboat' to make it a real big picture. Harry Pollard, whose health is much improved, will be able to direct and is now fixing the story and other incidentals of picture making.

[illegible] Universal uses the real Mississippi River. I don't believe it will be possible to fake it successfully. Too many people have lived along the banks of the classic stream to recognize the deception.

By the by, the chance given Barbara Kent to play in 'The Showboat,' speaks well for that young lady's future.

"ISN'T he gorgeous?" exclaimed a well-known stage star as Gary Cooper stepped out of an elevator. This young lady, accustomed to the attentions of stars, writers, [illegible] etc., was [illegible] what [illegible] the world.

Gary Cooper seems to have Mrs. Glyn's [illegible] stage star and the letters that come to this desk show what they are talking about. Anyway, Cooper will now give all of these a chance to gaze upon him for he replaces Richard Arlen in [illegible] Stringer's story, "White Hands," opposite Esther Ralston.

TRY KNOWLTON AND GIRL IN TIDE 'FRAUD'

John A. Knowlton of Long ave., Allston, head of the Universal Tide Power Company, and Mary E. Cantwell of [illegible] st., Dorchester, his confidential secretary, who have been afoul of the authorities before, were arraigned in Federal court today charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

The indictment resulted, as did previous prosecutions, from Knowlton's contention that he can harness the tides and extract power from them at his plant in Saugus.

The indictment charges that literature sent out from the office of the company contained false statements, intended to deceive prospective stock purchasers.

Postoffice Inspector Byron Hunt said that Knowlton failed in his purpose to produce power from the tides. Hunt charged that in 1915 Knowlton was tried in Federal Court for the sale of worthless stock, the jury disagreeing.

In September of 1927, according to Hunt, the Massachusetts Public Utilities Department made a finding that stock sold by the Universal Tide Power Co. was fraudulent. Two years ago Knowlton and Miss Cantwell were indicted by the Suffolk Grand Jury for violation of the Sales and Securities Act, and the case is still pending.

Hunt said that recent literature sent out by Knowlton claimed that the Edison company was dickering for the patent for $5,000,000, and that the Republic of France was also in communication with him.

The inspector said the company had sold more than $1,000,000 worth of stock since 1913, when it was incorporated, but a recent balance sheet showed assets of only $257 in cash and a plant at Saugus appraised by Knowlton at $300,000.

Government engineers contend that the Saugus plant produces only five horsepower and the spillway used covers eight acres, and on this basis a plant to produce 1000 horsepower would require 8000 acres and would cost $75,000,000 to build, the engineers say, according to Hunt's testimony.

3 OF GOODWIN'S 'FOES' DENY CHARGES

with regard to Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote.

ASK FOR INVESTIGATION.

The ex-registrar charged that General Foote was keeping an automobile thief out of jail so he could use him for a "stool pigeon."

He also demanded in his letter that an investigation of the charge be made and that, pending such a probe, Gen. Foote be prevented from sitting on an appeal hearing scheduled for tomorrow affecting decision of the fire marshal in revoking a permit issued to the Standard Oil Co. of New York for a vertical steel tank in Chelsea st. and in Bremen st., East Boston.

Earlier today denials were made by three men that they had anything to do with removal of Goodwin as motor vehicle registrar. These three were Gen. John H. Sherburne, Dr. George W. Haywood, member of the Governor's safety committee, and Gen. Foote.

Two others of the men Goodwin named in a "blast," as enemies who worked for his removal, failed either to affirm or deny. They are Ralph Goodwin, insurance company head, and Michael Shaw, attorney, who is on the Governor's safety committee.

The Goodwin grenade burst while he was addressing the Malden Club in Governor Fuller's home town, but much to the listeners' surprise the Governor was mentioned only once and then indirectly.

THOUGHT HIM EFFICIENT

These are replies made by four of the men attacked, when they were seen by a reporter today:

Gen. John H. Sherburne—I am entirely at a loss to know why he mentioned me. I had nothing to do with his removal. Never had. As a matter of fact I am very sorry he was removed, because I thought he was doing a very efficient job as registrar.

Dr. George W. Haywood of Lynn, member of the Governor's Safety Committee — Mr. Goodwin has never aroused my animosity. I have told him before that I was no enemy of his. When Mr. Goodwin said I was connected with the General Electric Co. of Lynn he was making a false statement. If I am connected with the company, then he must be vice president. I have nothing to do with the company other than that its officials have helped me in my study of traffic and corrections.

Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred E. Foote—Well—I'm not his enemy. I never did anything to harm him. Let it go at that.

Ralph Goodwin—I have nothing to say.

Attorney Michael Shaw—I'm not going to take any notice of it at all. I suppose I was mentioned because I am a member of the Governor's safety committee. It forces me to smile.

The others blamed by Goodwin are Herman A. MacDonald, the Governor's secretary, Thomas W. White, collector of internal revenue, Russell Sears and Eben Draper. Goodwin charged:

"MacDonald sought to name to me those whose licenses ought to be reinstated. I declined to listen to him and from the day I first turned him down he sought my scalp and stopped at nothing to get me."

Commissioner Foote became an enemy when Goodwin campaigned to jail a gang of automobile thieves, a member of which was being kept out of jail by the commissioner, Goodwin charged.

Ralph Goodwin was characterized as "my deadliest enemy." He is the head of an organization including 130 insurance companies.

Collector of Internal Revenue White was active in bringing about his removal because Goodwin refused to reinstate his brother's license, the former registrar declared.

apart from him for justifiable cause.

Doyle has had his troubles in the past, too, for in 1922 he was arrested for alleged larceny of $18,000 from the Exchange Trust Company which employed him as auditor. Both Mullen and Doyle are young men and they are said to have formerly been friendly.

The sobriquet, "phantom salesman," was given Mullen by the police because his stock sales were chiefly by telephone, people who never saw him in person entrusting their funds to him. He is awaiting further action by the authorities who are still investigating his career.

Thief Returns Blind Girl's Watch With Note

Conscience stricken when he learned through a front page story in the Boston Evening American that he had stolen a blind girl's watch, the thief wrapped the watch in a note and dropped it where it was easily found today.

"I did not know that I had stolen the watch of a blind woman," the note ran when police, to whom it was taken by the finder, Anthony Torminello Jr., read it. "I am returning it. I know it will be found by leaving it here."

The watch, a gold one presented to the girl, Miss Juliette Farelli, who sells music at the Revere Music Shop, 280 Broadway, Revere, was notched so that she could tell time on it. She kept it in a purse which the thief took yesterday.

"I don't care for the money that was in the purse," the girl said when her prized watch was returned to her. "I am so glad the thief returned my watch."

People who want to eat less meat should eat more Macaroni*

Gilman Thompson, the great food authority of London, writes, "Macaroni, weight for weight, is as valuable for flesh making as the most nutritious meats, and is considerably more digestible than meat."

*What is said here about Macaroni applies with equal force to Spaghetti.

Henry Mueller says—

"Before we started making Cooked Spaghetti, we tried dozens of different sauce combinations. Finally we found one that is exactly right. It takes more ingredients, and finer ingredients, than anybody ever put into Cooked Spaghetti before. But if you'll try just one can you will see that it is worth all the care and thought we give it."

Dickie and Mice Get Action at Courthouse

The world will sleep better tonight for the story of Richard English who spent last night in a cell at Lynn police headquarters, because the little woman claimed she wasn't being treated right in a money way by nonchalant Dickie.

Richard will be lighter by $10 a week hereafter, but always he will retain the sight of comely and cute stenographers leaping on desks in the Lynn courthouse and holding aloft elevated skirts a bit higher while Richard repeated to the probation officer—with gestures and [illegible]—the story he told Judge Ralph W. Reeve in open court.

It's all about mice—and the way they play about a sleeping man's face, while the cat, if any, is away. In Richard's cell there wasn't any cat, so Richard had to do his own mouse catching.

English, who is 30 years old, was [illegible] and was deposited in a cell at Lynn police headquarters to await court on the non-support charge.

Although a married man, English still retains his nonchalance and [illegible] arranged himself on the bench in a position of repose.

Some time subsequent, he was awakened by a tickle on his face. Lighting a match, he observed a mouse strolling southwest along his vest and then nose-diving into [illegible] corners that were foreign country to Richard.

Sighing resignedly, Richard again again composed himself in slumber only to be disturbed once more by contact of fur on his face. This time Richard grabbed in the dark and seized a mouse by the tail.

Here the story would be lost were it not for the fact that Richard lights a match with one hand by the scratch of a thumbnail across the friction substance. In the light he glimpsed a squirming mouse. Being still sleepy, he thrust the mouse into a pocket of his overcoat hanging on the wall—and reposed himself once again.

But still he was awakened. Lighting another match, he squeezed a squealing rodent as it slid off his face to the hard bench, and contemplated it dourly. Finally he put this mouse in his other pocket of the overcoat—the idea being mainly that the mice would be impounded in daylight and would therefore be out of the running.

When Richard stood up in the dock today, Judge Reeve looked down and remarked:

"You don't look so good this morning. Didn't you have a good night?"

Richard explained passionately about the mice and reached for his pockets.

"Wait a minute," expostulated the judge. "There are women here and I don't want a panic."

So Richard was ordered to pay the $10 a week to his wife, Mrs. Edith E. English of Lynn.

In the probation officer's quarters, Richard told the same story of the night—and produced first a mouse from one pocket and then a mouse from the other.

Instantly there was a concert of squeals and shrieks from [illegible] workers present. Sleazy skirts climbed high above shapely calves as the girls scrambled on desks and [illegible]. Bloomers in all tints and [illegible] became prominent.

English was ordered to keep his [illegible] and he departed the courtroom [illegible] with his captives still in his possession.

COPLEY PLAYERS TO GIVE PRISON SHOW

E. E. Clive of the Copley Theater will lose his company for a "short [illegible]" to the Massachusetts State Prison in Charlestown where they will present a performance of "[illegible]," the comedy that recently completed a month's engagement at his Stuart st. playhouse.

This is the fourth successive year that Clive has transported, at his own expense, the major portion of his organization for the purpose of entertaining the prisoners.

MEXICAN TROOPS SEIZE PRIEST AS INSURGENT

Mexico City, March 16 (AP)—Dispatches from Guadalajara today said a Catholic priest named Albino Curdenas and Mauricio Martinez, a civilian, were captured when Federal forces dispersed a group of insurgents at Loguınila. It was said seditious propaganda was found on them. The same Federal forces killed four insurgents in another engagement.

The priest, Antonio Mendes and five civilians executed at San Luis Potosi Monday, denied their guilt at the court-martial, but Military Commandant Francisco Carreras said he had undeniable evidence of their participation in the insurgent movement.

RADIO DIALOG

THE fascinations of Palm Beach and Aiken and the splendors of society's raiment at Dixie's exclusive gathering places will be pictured for WLOE's radio audience at 8 o'clock this evening by Betty Alden, society editor of the Boston Evening American. Miss Alden has just returned to Boston after a stay at Palm Beach and Southern resorts during the height of its brief winter social season.

An original Gaelic song, probably never before heard via radio, will be sung by Sheila O'Donovan Rossa, soprano, in a St. Patrick's eve broadcast of Irish music from WLOE tonight. During her hour's program, Miss Rossa will be assisted by the members of her quintet.

THE precise rhythm of the Polar Bears, heard every morning from WNAC, has led many to believe that the hour consists of phonograph records. The music is actually supplied by the indefatigable and versatile Will Dodge and his orchestra.

WNAC will broadcast a program of Polish dance music played by Shep Wolan's orchestra at 8:30 tonight. Listeners are promised plenty of pep to make up for the absence of jazz.

GENE TUNNEY is going to battle a formidable ghost tonight in the studio of WOR. Maj. J. Andrew White will describe an imaginary battle between the heavyweight champion of today and John L. Sullivan, the greatest Roman of them all, during the La Palina hour. It will be heard through WNAC. John L. was capable of even more remarkable exploits than defeating heavyweight sluggers. One epic tale concerns a stunt performed with six silver dollars. A cartwheel is to be seen now and then these days, but the John L. Sullivan's are gone forever.

The Zenith Corporation has obtained control of patents covering the new automatic receiver described last week. With this receiver, the listener pushes a button for the station wanted. Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske sees in the invention a valuable assistant to the navy in perfecting the establishment of communication in surface ships and air craft where speedy and accurate changes of wavelength are frequently of vital importance.

THE annual radio ball in Springfield will be broadcast over WBZ from 10 o'clock tonight to 2 a. m. Alden Redmond will be featured in the stage show which is one of the program features of the party.

Boston radio listeners thought they were hearing things when the most familiar voice in radio started describing the current American opera from a local station. Instead of Roxy, the speaker was Henry Gideon, well-known Boston musician. The similarity of the two voices is startling.

MARTHA LEE is moving into a brand new kitchen, and she is as excited about it as though it were a gold-brocaded boudoir. Her audience has outgrown present quarters, and she is taking a room of auditorium proportions on the fifth floor of the Boston Evening American building with the model kitchen set up on a stage. The official opening will be Monday afternoon at 2. The ever-capable Martha will have arrangements well enough in hand so that she will be able to conduct the usual morning broadcast from WLOE.

Frank H. Meloon, financial editor of the Boston Evening American, devoted this week's investment talk from the Evening American studio to the subject of preferred stocks. Mr. Meloon's talks are intended to guide women investors towards safe and conservative placing of their funds. Aside from the weekly radio talk each Thursday noon, he has a daily column of financial information on his financial page.

WBZ inaugurated a new series last night prepared for the home owner. It is entitled "Ship o Dreams," and the musical program is directed by Clifford Kemp. Lea Wilde, soprano, was the soloist of the evening.

SEVERE QUAKE IS RECORDED

Washington, March 16 (AP)—An earthquake of an intensity greater than any ever noted on the seismograph of Georgetown University here was recorded early today by Director Tondorf.

The shocks lasted more than four hours, reaching their maximum at 1 a. m. Three powerful shocks were recorded at 1:06, 1:09 and 1:14 a. m.

These shocks disturbed the needles of the instrument six inches. Director Tondorf was not able to say exactly the distance of the shocks from Washington but estimated them at about 8000 miles.

London, March 16 (INS)—Violent earth tremblings in the vicinity of Xylocastro, a town near Corinth, Greece, caused the collapse of numerous buildings and threw the population into a panic, according to a dispatch from Athens to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

Many good Used Cars driven only a few hundred miles are offered every day in Boston American Classified Ads. Call Liberty 4000.

but throughout the year motorists give preference to Buick

When the Motor Show ends—when the "tumult and the shouting dies"—when buyers go forth to make their own selections on the basis of quality and value—then, as during the show itself, they give the bulk of their favor to Buick.

More people buy Buicks year after year than any other fine car. Last year, they gave Buick the biggest year in its history. And today, they invest almost twice as many dollars in Buick motor cars as in any other car above the lowest price class.

Choose Buick and you choose the recognized leader among fine cars . . . Not only at the Show, but throughout the year, motorists give preference to Buick!

SMART SET, PLEASURE BENT, MERRILY SAILS ON—BETTY ALDEN

Mrs. Charles F. Leland, With Her Three Children, Have Departed to Society's Latest Playground, North Africa

THEY STEAM IN AND OUT OF PORT PRACTICALLY EVERY DAY OF EVERY WEEK, those majestic, transocean-going, luxuriously appointed "floating hotels." They are either just coming back from leisurely cruises; or starting off again to romantic spots down beyond the horizon. A sight of them never fails to paint one's imagination bright with alluring pictures. And invariably they have aboard travelers just back from foreign parts, or those just leaving. The steamship France is away on another of her cruises on blue Mediterranean waters, and her passenger list is most interesting, from a Bostonian viewpoint.

MRS. CHARLES F. LELAND IS TAKING HER THREE YOUNG PEOPLE TO VIEW the sights of Northern Africa and the sophistications of the Continent adjacent to the Mediterranean. She has Miss Margaret Leland, Miss Luisita Leland, and Charles H. Leland, the second, with her. The Harry Hill Thorndikes round out their winter in this pleasantly casual way of seeing the world's most talked-of places. Miss Isabel Thorndike and Miss Winifred, eldest and youngest of the Thorndike trio of girls, are on the France doing the cruise with pater and mater.

EN ROUTE TO CASABLANCA VIA THE FRANCE, MISS FRANCES G. CURTIS, eminent Bostonian, is outbound toward Northern Africa with Miss Louisa M. Pleasants as her traveling companion. They tarry some time in the newest and increasingly popular playground of the knowing ones, and during their stay will be guests of the family of the British attache. A Philadelphian, in the person of Mrs. Henry Wharton, and a New Yorker, in the person of Mrs. C. Grant LaFarge, both widely known in Boston's higher circles, also are aboard the France for the Mediterranean-Moroccan cruise

ARRIVING WITH THE HOME COMING ONRUSH IS MISS ETHEL THAYER, daughter of Mrs. Ezra Ripley Thayer, who was in Gotham to [illegible] daughter welcome. Miss Thayer, who made the social curtsy [illegible] turnouts set two or three years ago, spends much time in [illegible], one of the lucky ones able to embark and sail away as fancy [illegible]. Mrs. Robert Calhoun and Miss [illegible] Coolman, listed in the [illegible] of the [illegible] "Dilatory Dom[illegible]" also are in or [illegible] been in the Big City. They, too, are of those responding to the wanderlust that some may hearken to and some may not.

THIS EVENING WHEN THE YOUNGER SET GETS ITSELF UP IN what it fancies as "fancy dress" to trip a rhythmic measure at the last Junior Supper Dance of the winter, the darling debutante and her flock of freshmen will be among those not present. There wouldn't be room, even in the Copley Plaza's enormous ballroom, for the entire younger set, were its youngest element included in the invitation list.

TO TURN OUT A BRIDE AND HER WEDDING ENTOURAGE SO pictorially perfect as Mrs. Hamilton Warren (Jane Tucker) and ten attendants were yesterday, is a feat any [illegible] should be proud of. Well might each and every one, from bride in white to little flower girl in blue, have been subjects for a Romney or a Greuze. Together they contributed to wedding beauty a processional distinctly unusual, one that would have matched amazingly well the dim, vast spaces of an Old World cathedral. In the very lovely Church of the Redeemer at Chestnut Hill they were tremendously effective.

VERY WISELY THE BRIDE'S CLASSIC TYPE WAS ENHANCED WITH SIMPLEST [illegible]. Satin, of course, the gown, with the long train sweeping from the waist [illegible]. [illegible] misty layers formed the veil. And there was [illegible] about her [illegible] single long strand of orange blossoms. The "something old" every bride must wear [illegible] was for Mrs. Warren some precious pieces of [illegible] macrosse lace belonging to her mother, Mrs. [illegible] Tucker. Cuffs of fingertip length, and a deep [illegible] added a frilly beauty to gleaming satin. A bride of unusual beauty, everyone declared.

MARCH'S BRISK BREEZE SWEEPING ACROSS THE CHURCH PORTICO, MADE [illegible] bridesmaids' frocks. [illegible] mode of Elizabethan days, [illegible] was worn expertly by [illegible] the Misses Virginia Sargent, [illegible] Goodwin, Elizabeth Morgan, [illegible], Phyllis [illegible], Joan Higginson, [illegible], Marie Louise [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] was the [illegible]. [illegible] bridesmaids wore [illegible] with narrow, flaring [illegible]. Tall [illegible] reached to the necks of [illegible], and [illegible] the collars rose to the ears.

THEIR BOUQUETS WERE BRIGHTLY YELLOW, IN DEFERENCE to spring's approach. Bright spots of color against taffeta frocks of sand beige overlaying pale blue. [illegible] Miss Gwendolyn Livermore, flower girl, was in sky blue, a high waisted, down to the ground frock, and she wore a blue ribbon to bind her hair. Miss Virginia Sargent, in the honor maid role, lent variation to the color scheme with another frock of blue, but similar in design to the other bridesmaids. A company of the social Olympians filled the church. Mrs. Tucker was radiant in orchid, and Mrs. Fiske Warren, mother of the bridegroom, was handsomely costumed in golden brown, velvet and lace combined most elegantly.

electric dishwashing is now practical for home kitchens

3RD FLOOR ANNEX

Conover
No new sink nor plumbing required

In house or apartment—for large and small families—the new Portable Model AA CONOVER has proved electric dishwashing practical.

The reason is simple. In addition to saving time, work, and keeping the hands out of dishwater, it washes the dishes cleaner, more sanitary, than is possible by hand methods. A few simple operations, a few minutes, and all the dishes from an average meal come out clean, sparkling, hot and dry—a delight to the eye and to the touch.

And with all its advantages, the CONOVER is within the means of the most modest of budgets—for it requires no new sink, no new plumbing! It fills from the faucet and empties into the sink.

The CONOVER will prove to you that electric dishwashing is practical for you, too.

FULLER CALLS POLITICS 'DIRTY GAME'

'I'm So Afraid!' Sobs Flapper Bandit in Cell

DORIS DREADS NOOSE AS HANGMAN WORKS

Montreal, Que., March 16 (INS)—Sobs wracked the frail [illegible] 20-year-old Doris Palmer McDonald, American flapper bandit, as she sat in her cell today and contemplated the grim fact that next Friday she must die on the gallows at Valleyfield Prison.

"I'm so afraid," she moaned, while the nuns, who are guarding her in the Fullum st. jail, sought to comfort her.

[illegible]

[illegible] Hangman Ellis went to Valleyfield yesterday and selected a location for the gibbet. He picked a spot which will render a view of the execution impossible from the windows of a new four-story building across the street from the prison.

[illegible] Valleyfield on the morning of March 23.

News of these grim preparations have come back to Doris in her cell and a feeling of tragic foreboding has come over her. She cheered up somewhat, however, when she learned that [illegible], young attorney of Mount Vernon, N. Y., where she formerly lived and moved in exclusive circles, had arrived in Montreal today to continue his fight for clemency.

Attorney [illegible] has been identified with the appeals to Canadian authorities for the remission of the death penalty, as far as the girl is concerned.

The girl's plight has aroused [illegible] interest and there is [illegible] [illegible]. The Premier of Quebec [illegible] Alexandre Taschereau [illegible] [illegible] as favoring the execution of the girl.

Other Canadian officials asserted that Miss McDonald's appeal would be weighed purely on its merits and that politics would not be allowed to creep into the situation.

PREDICT STATE PURCHASE OF ELEVATED

Public ownership of the Boston Elevated will win on Monday in the committee on street railways and metropolitan affairs, according to predictions today at the State House by adherents of state purchase of the road.

Although no names were mentioned, adherents of public ownership stated that several of the opposition members of the committee have changed their minds since the vote of yesterday, thus assuring the state ownership faction of victory.

There is much mystery as to the reasons for these vote changes. Some believe that the opposition wish to get some bill reported out from the committee to the Legislature and then sent up to the Governor to get a [illegible] the position. Because of the strength of the public ownership adherents in the committee no other bill could be reported. Therefore the vote changes.

Although Governor Fuller expressed his belief that a solution of the Elevated problem will come before the Legislature adjourns and renewed his threat to keep the branches in session until a bill is enacted, he declined to take the lead in working out the details of any bill.

BIG ROUNDUP IN R. I. RUM RING DUE TODAY

Providence, March 16—A [illegible]

[illegible] witnesses have been heard.

The Government alleges the distillery was operated from December 1 to December 29, 1927, and the plot to operate the plant existed from September 15 to December 5, 1927.

Only pure blackstrap molasses was used in the plant, according to officials, and when the raid was made the officers found six vats with 6000 gallons capacity each. Investigation revealed that a chemist of great skill had directed distilling of the molasses and the net profit from the plant is said to have been about $[illegible],000 a week.

KAISER'S SISTER GIVES LIE TO DEPORTATION ORDER

Cologne, Germany, March 16 (AP)—Princess Victoria of Schaumburg-Lippe, sister of former Kaiser Wilhelm, was fervently loyal today to her husband, Alexander Subkoff, ordered expelled from Germany after being involved in a series of escapades since his marriage four months ago. "We are perfectly happy together," she said. "Our only desire is to be left alone." Told of the expulsion order, the princess branded it "an infamous lie."

EARTHQUAKE SHOCK IS RECORDED AT HARVARD

An earthquake of moderate intensity was recorded at the Harvard University seismograph station today. The record began at 12:30 a. m. and continued for two hours with three well-defined wave trains. The first of the shocks was shown at 1:07 a. m., followed by another at 1:14 and a third at 1:19.

The location of the quake was not known here.

PLANE FLIES FROM N. Y. TO HUB IN 100 MINUTES

Roaring through space at the rate of nearly two miles a minute, Lieut. Richard E. Cobb, regular army pilot stationed at the Boston airport, arrived here today from Mitchel Field, N. Y. He was making a return flight from Bolling Field, Washington, but was held at Mitchel Field since Tuesday by dense fog. He flew an air-line distance of 188 miles in 100 minutes today.

Piloting a new Pt-1 army plane, Capt. Christopher W. Ford, acting head of the army air corps in New England, left Wright Field, Dayton today on a 700-mile flight to this city. He planned stops at Columbus, O., and Bolling Field and is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow. The plane will be placed in official use for regular army aviators.

CHELSEA LEGION MAN GETS YEAR

Harry M. Ellis, 38, former treasurer of Post 34, A. L., [illegible] in Chelsea Court today was found guilty of the larceny of $10[illegible] of the funds of the organization and was sentenced to one year by Judge [illegible].

Ellis, who had pleaded not guilty to the charge, appealed and was held in bonds of $1500.

The defendant is married, the father of five children, and lives on Sturgis st., Chelsea.

When the case was called today the courtroom was [illegible] veterans and others. [illegible] of Police Charles Finn prosecuted the case, and Ellis was represented by Paul McDonald, who was campaign manager for Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley.

The state charged that Ellis had sickness in his family, and that the funds of the Legion post were used to pay bills.

DE MAR IS SEEKING RECORD

America's Marathon King Favored to Win Shepard Stores' Race Tomorrow

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

With De Mar in fine fettle and a field of 68 other runners The Shepard Stores' Marathon from Providence to Boston tomorrow, is the big sport event of the day.

De Mar, who went over the course Saturday, March 10, in 7 hours 7 minutes and 30 [illegible] with one stop for lunch, is going out after a record. [illegible], De Mar may be identified [illegible] number 1 on his back.

The estimated distance of the course is 44 miles. Back in 1882 on Washington's Birthday William C. Davies [illegible] in 6 hours, 8 minutes and [illegible] seconds.

1927 WINNER STARTS

In order to get accurate measurements of the distance The Shepard Stores arranged with Stewart-Warner Speedometer [illegible] of the B. A. A. went along [illegible] official observer.

Leon Yeuell, winner on the Boston end of the double run last year is entered. His time for the run in 1927 was 6 hours, 53 minutes 16 seconds.

Another real runner who will wear figure No. 3 is George L. Dodge. In the Shepard event last year, Dodge led the field of about 70 for 37 miles, [illegible] a winner in the fast time of 6 hrs. 32 min. 48 sec.

REAL INDIAN ENTERED

Another [illegible] is Horatio S. (Chief) Stanton, the Narragansett Indian from Westerly, R. I. Stanton is rated by many sports writers as the sixth best Marathoner. He has beaten such classy speedsters as Jimmie Henigan, Johnny Miles and [illegible].

In the 1927 Marathons, Stanton ran in 12 [illegible] and finished within the first 10 each time.

Among the late entries are Bob Fisher, Jr., a star of the Technical high school track team at Providence; John A. Kelley of Arlington, William M. Leach of Reading, William J. Groves of [illegible], Joseph S. Rosen, running under the colors of Victor A. C., and William Lohr of Peabody [illegible].

NO PLAYOFF IN CASE OF TIE

Arrangements have been made by the National Hockey League to cover any ties which may result at the end of the [illegible] when final games are played next Saturday. There would seem good chance now with but a week of play left, that Pittsburgh and Detroit may tie for third place in the American division.

There will be no playoff game, should Pittsburgh and Detroit tie, but the team with the better goal scoring and defensive record will be acknowledged the third place team.

The ratio of goals scored for and against will be worked out and the team having the better percentage will win. For instance if one team has 50 goals scored and has had [illegible] goals scored against it, and another team [illegible] 40 goals scored and [illegible] scored against it, the [illegible] team would win the playoff berth.

ED JEREMIAH AT THIRD IN DARTMOUTH PRACTICE

Hanover, N. H., March 16—Jeff Tesreau's Dartmouth baseball squad assumed more definite shape when he held a fast infield practice following the workouts of his pitchers. [illegible] was used at third base [illegible] of last year's team. Bob Wells was at short; Brick Sands, a substitute [illegible] at second, with Chick [illegible] first.

[illegible] a great deal of [illegible] portsider.

Expect Pete Herman Out for Eagle Nine

Pete Herman, big Boston College right hander, is expected to report for the nine next Monday. Herman has been ineligible for the team due to scholastic difficulty but is likely to get the dean's permission to join the squad before next week.

Herman is a pip of a moundsman and would be a big boost to Boston College's championship hopes. Jack Slattery worked Herman against many of the smaller teams on the B. C. schedule last spring and Herman didn't lose a game.

Besides being a fine twirler he led the entire squad with the willow. He had an average of more than .400 at the close of the season, but hadn't stepped to the platter as much as the varsity nine so lost out on the clouting honors.

Duffy, in his quest for spare outfielders, would find Herman useful. His hitting strength should please the B. C. coach, [illegible] is not as fast as the general run of gardeners.

Herman will have three weeks in which to get his right arm into shape. He's in [illegible] having played football [illegible] a lot of track work and the start that the other twirlers have on him would not be of much account.

Herman's best asset [illegible] is a terrific fast ball coupled with a bewildering change of pace. He had most of the enemy swinging an hour too late when [illegible] his fast ball down the alley last spring.

With the experience he gained and a few more pitching pointers from Coach Duffy and [illegible] Herman will be taking his regular turn on the mound with McNally and Shea this spring.

EXPECT ANOTHER BATCH OF STARS IN ST. JOE'S BOUTS

Another crop of amateur stars is expected to be uncovered at the weekly boxing tournament of the St. Joseph's T. A. S., to be held tomorrow night at [illegible] Hall, Bowdoin sq.

With bouts in seven classes and with two divisions set aside for novices, followers of the pures are looking forward to some keen action.

The novices will compete in the 126 and 160-pound classes. The open classes in [illegible] 147 and heavyweight. Entries for the tournament may be filed with William [illegible] Washington st.

B. U. SPORT NOTES

The Evening Division basketball team is the only winter sports activity that has not closed its season. The team has one more game to play and will not end their season until next Thursday night.

Coach "Chippie" Gaw has his baseball candidates tossing the ball around at the gymnasium every day. He hopes to be able to take them outdoors next week.

This is the period of athletic inactivity at the college. Practically all winter sports are over and the spring teams have not started to play.

Although the baseball season has not started, one casualty has been reported. "Red" Murphy, promising freshman, who was tryout for a twirling berth on the varsity wrenched his arm when he attempted to throw a hook. He will be out a couple of weeks.

The rumor that the fencing team is doing esthetic dancing to keep in condition has not been verified as the team is having secret practice.

Coach Freddie Burns has been watching his track squad very closely as the men have just completed a strenuous indoor season and he is allowed them to take it easy before the outdoor competion starts.

Heeney With $150,000 Off for England

New York, March 16 (INS)—While Tex Rickard's matchmaker was endeavoring to sign Tom Heeney today for a final elimination bout with Johnny Risko [illegible] May 1, Heeney was preparing to sail for England tonight for a six weeks' vacation. Heeney has earned nearly $1[illegible] [illegible] a year [illegible], and intends to enjoy life for a while.

Heeney, named by Gene Tunney as [illegible] a shot at the title or a withdrawal from Rickard's program. Meanwhile Rickard is en route to Florida for a conference with Tunney.

COLLINS LIKES SOX PROSPECTS

Pittsfield, March 16—John "Shauno" Collins, manager of the Pittsfield baseball club of the Eastern League and ex-Chicago and Boston American League player, who has returned from the Boston American League camp at Bradenton, Fla., is optimistic over the prospects of the Red Sox for the coming season.

"Boston had a much better squad than was the case last year and I am certain that the players who will be sent to Pittsfield by Bob Quinn, owner, and Bill Carrigan, manager, will be of real help to our ball 'club,'" remarked Collins.

"Many of the young players are particularly promising and the Red Sox also are well equipped with capable veterans. Bill Carrigan is getting results and the club is having the benefit of training under the most favorable climatic conditions I have ever experienced. The Boston players will be in great shape when they start north.

"It was so pleasant at Bradenton that I did much more playing than I had figured [illegible] to get into the game now if I had to. Being in Berkshire for a couple of weeks before the Hillies report at Fenway Park, Boston, Monday, March 26, will stiffen me some but it will be easy to get fit again after that experience in the [illegible].

"The Boston club will break camp, March 23 and will send some players on to Boston to join Pittsfield. Others will be turned over to the Hillies after the Red Sox wind up the exhibition tour."

BRUINS BETTER STANDING

New York, March 16 (AP)—The Boston Bruins today had made a runaway affair out of the race in the American group of the National Hockey League.

The Bruins defeated the Chicago Blackhawks 3 to 1 at Chicago last night and widened their advantage over the New York Rangers to eight points. Gainor, reserve Boston wing man, scored twice and assisted Gordon in making another counter.

At Montreal the Detroit sextet blanked the international group pacemakers, the Canadiens, 1 to 0. This gave Detroit sole control of third place, which previously had been shared with the Pittsburgh Pirates, who were idle. The New York Americans went down to a 5 to 2 defeat before the Ottawa Senators at New oYrk.

Roberti Signs to Box Von Porat

Chicago, March 16 (AP)—Plans for a heavyweight elimination tournament of his own were launched today by Promoter Jim Mullen with the signing of Roberto Roberti, Italian, with Otto von Porat, Norwegian, for ten rounds March 23.

The next opponent of Gene Tunney must come from the younger and comparatively unknown heavies, Mullen contends. Mullen claims the Eastern eliminations have failed to produce a heavyweight of sufficient merit to deserve a match with the champion.

Everett Baseball

Everett High announces a rather heavy baseball list: April 12, Boston English; 19, Rindge; 21, at Newton; 25, open; 28, at Cambridge Latin; May 3, B. C. fresh at Newton; 5, Somerville; 8, at Malden; 10, Dorchester; 12, at Brookline; 15, at Medford; 19, at Rindge Tech; 22, Brockton; 23, Newton; 26, Cambridge; 29, at Melrose; 30, at Somerville; June 2, Malden; 5, at Brockton; 6, Brookline.

TO REWARD 12 B. C. HOCKEY PLAYERS

Twelve Boston College hockey players have been recommended by the Student Athletic Council for letters. The names will be placed before the B. C. A. A. on Monday night when that body convenes.

Capt. Joe Fitzgerald, Art Morrisey, Leon Fitzgerald, Jerry Antone, Ed Stiney, Smokey Kelliher, Larry Gibson, Nick Tedesco, John Groden, Snooks Kelley, Joe Fallon, and Perley Payson make up the dozen pucksters who will in all probability receive their varsity insignia for work during the past season.

The Boston College A. A. puts the final O. K. on the recommendations of the Student Council and seldom turns down any of the names on the list.

When the boys who have won their varsity insignias are learned they vote for the captain for next season's team. So if everything goes right the leader for the Winter of 1928-29 will be chosen on Tuesday afternoon.

Art Morrisey and Nick Tedesco are the two outstanding men for the captaincy of next winter's Eagle sextet. Both have played three seasons, and were regulars on this winter's outfit.

Morrisey is a big defenseman. He improved so rapidly during the past two years that he had no competition for the varsity job, and proved one of the stars of the six teaming up with Capt. Joe Fitzgerald.

He's a brother of Len Morrisey who played defense on the championship Boston College ice team of 1923. Morrisey after graduation played with the Providence team of the Can.-Am. League. He was instrumental in the advancement of the kid brother.

Tedesco was the high-scorer of the Eagle outfit during the past season, and covered right wing. That Tedesco was a real asset to the team was seen in the final B. U. game.

HUSKIES HAVE THREE VETS

Nearly half of the Northeastern hoop squad will be in baseball togs this spring. Larry Ranney is the only letter man in both sports, but Joe Placzek, Tilly Arcardi, Bill Symancyk, Roy Radcliffe, Perry Ranney, Phil Hamilton, Leslie Simms, Eddie Goodwin and Dick Hassell are cagemen Coach Rufus Bond will welcome on the diamond.

Of the basketeers the Ranney brothers and Goodwin are the only ones who won baseball letters last spring. Radcliffe was utility infielder.

This season Radcliffe will have to battle Arcardi, basketball letter man, and Stewy Mader, baseball letter man two years ago for the third base position. Arcardi, a sophomore, did not go out for baseball last year. He was stationed at the hot corner three seasons for Searles high of Great Barrington.

In the Berkshire League, Searles was runner-up in both baseball and basketball. Arcardi made three letters in baseball and two in both basketball and football, captaining the quintet and eleven in his senior year. If Tilly lives up to his reputation, the third base problem will be solved.

Eli Publication Lauds Grid Committee

New Haven, Ct., March 16 (AP)—A new angle in the relations of Marvin A. Stevens, newly-appointed head coach in football to the university as a whole, not previously commented upon, was pointed out today by the Yale Alumni Weekly in giving approval to the action of the football committee.

The Weekly said that the importance of the selection of Mr. Stevens was in the fact that he will have a place in the University organization the year round, and will not be merely a seasonal coach.

"This is as it should be," said the Weekly, "and it is what we had hoped would be the case when a new coach was selected. It is common in [illegible] experience the country over that the seasonal coach on salary to win his games very shortly finds himself pitted in the public eye against rival coaches, and the game itself becomes a duel between coaches and coaching systems rather than a sport between student teams."

Flowers-Petrolle at Garden Tonight

New York, March 16 (AP)—Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y. negro, and Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, clash in a 10-round lightweight struggle in the main event at Madison Square Garden tonight.

This will be Petrolle's first appearance in the Garden in nearly two years.

The 10-round semi final will bring together Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, former king of the bantams, and Davey Abad.

Malden Tennis

Here is the Malden high tennis list: April 21, at Exeter; 25, at Worcester Academy; 27, at Browne & Nichols; May 3, at Newton; 4, at St. John's Prep; 10, at Milton Academy; 11, at Tufts Fresh. 14, Everett, 15, at Lowell; 18, at Dummer; 23, Somerville; 24, Lowell; 21, Medford; June 1, at Melrose; 12, English; 15, at Everett. Home games will be played [illegible] Woodland tennis courts.

Foreign Heavy May Win World's Title

By GENE TUNNEY
World's Heavyweight Champion

ALMOST all of the American boxing fans with whom I come in contact like to comment upon the fact that the heavyweight title has rested within the boundaries of the United States for a number of years and that it is now sure of staying here forever.

I do not like to dampen their patriotic enthusiasm, but I believe that the day when we will have plenty of foreign contenders is not many years away.

By that I do not mean to disparage anybody now in the limelight in this or any other country, but I do mean that from the signs I can read plainly, there will be a truly "world" meaning to the title of the heavyweight and other classes and I expect to see frequent international bouts held in all the larger cities of the world.

If those who believe that America is going to retain the perpetual possession of supremacy in the ring, they should remember that everything has been in favor of American boxing, and other sports as well, since the close of the war.

Loyal British fans flocked back to the fistic sport as soon as the war ended, but most of their matches had to be held on shoestring proportions which naturally did not attract many newcomers to the ring.

Likewise, France, which was less advanced than England in boxing, had to begin cautiously and it has only now put the game on a basis where young aspirants can expect to reach any great heights.

A LOT of credit belongs to Georges Carpentier for this revival of interest in the game there. Friendships he and his manager, M. Descamps, made in America were largely responsible for the establishment of a system in France which neither the American nor English control surpasses.

For example, in addition to the ordinary routine system of control by a central, national commission, there is a rule to the effect that any two contenders for a title who cannot come to terms with the promoters of the French Boxing Federation, can be ordered to fight out the claim in private before a select band of officials and sport writers. [illegible] In such case there is no remuneration for either man.

The rule may sound a bit hard on the fighters, but behind it is the determination to keep the boxing fans free from temperamental boxers or those who are boxing purely for commercial reasons.

As to other countries, there has been similar trouble in putting the game back on its feet. There was the problem everywhere abroad over the terrific loss of man-power and labor conditions which militated against young men taking up sport seriously.

There was a general run-down physical condition, too, in all the larger countries, and even while America was holding the Dempsey-Carpentier fight with such astounding financial results political conditions were still barring sport relationships among countries of Europe.

But at the same time the countries which have never given any particular attention to boxing, began building up new foundations. Germany, for instance, where sports had always taken the form of mass formations and drills suddenly awoke to the pleasure of individual competition. So did Czecho-Slovakia, which had not existed before the war.

IT IS scarcely six years ago that those fighters who had been developed under these difficult conditions began visiting about, purely out of good will motives, because they never could tell when they were going to run into a money slump and get nothing in return.

But the fact that they were seen everywhere shows the anxiety for better international boxing relations that had their influence, too, in the political situation.

When German and French officialdom was still scowling across the border, Georges Carpentier was cheering German fighters from the ringside in Berlin; Marcel Niles, also from Paris, was contending in London; Spalla the Italian, Charles the Belgian, and Scott and Wells and Beckett and Soldier Jones were all mixing in international carnivals. They were not great, it is true, but they were all helping put the game on a new post-war basis.

Even the French colonies on the Dark Continent hastily rigged up Siki as a contender and the Pampas of South America sent Firpo abroad to join in the festivities. All of these were products of troubled times which are not thoroughly realized by American boxing fans, but their appearance, at a time when international sport might well have died in a world of post-war bickerings and enmities, played an important part in boxing.

HAGEN ACCEPTS CHALLENGE

London, March 16 (AP)—Walter Hagen, American professional golf champion, has accepted the challenge of Archie Compston, long hitting British star, to play for the professional match play championship of the world.

Each player's backers will put up a side bet of £750 for the match, which will probably be for 72 holes and played prior to the British open championship in which Hagen is entered.

The American star is at present undisputed possessor of the match play crown, in recent seasons he has defeated Bobby Jones, Abe Mitchell and other stars in special matches. Hagen won the British open twice, in 1922 and 1924 and was runner-up in 1923.

Holy Cross Awards Letters in 3 Sports

Worcester, March 16—The following members of the Holy Cross track and basketball squads were awarded letters at a meeting of the athletic association:

Track—Capt. Earl C. McDonald, James F. Quinn, James D. Daley, William B. Brennan, John V. Murphy, William Beane, John [illegible], Thomas A. Durkin, John T. Maher and [illegible].

Basketball—Capt. John W. Reilly, Ambrose Brady, Stuart [illegible], Augustus [illegible], Martin [illegible], Sheldon [illegible], Alfred [illegible], John Morris, Henry Shanahan and John Sullivan.

Murphy, Shanahan and Jim Daley are Greater Boston boys.

An insignia consisting of a strip of purple ribbon from the right shoulder to the left hip on the jerseys will be given to those members of the team who placed in the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet this season.

BRAVES EARN A LAY-OFF

Trimming World's Champions Twice This Week, Slat's Men Can Now Take It Soft

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 16—Jack Slattery's Braves will enjoy what might be called a well-earned section of rest today. The team from Florida University is present for a ball game but the regulars will only linger for a couple of innings. Then they can go golfing or fishing or whatever, while the rookies will fight it out with the collegians.

Nick Flatley

The Braves have had a good week, all things considered, beating the Yankees twice, tying the Senators and losing a 1 to 0 game to the Cardinals. Results in the spring do not amount to a third of a row of pins but much can be gleaned for the general conduct of the team.

Mister Slattery has been working to get his defense in shape and the week's work would indicate that he had succeeded admirably. Just two runs have been scored against the Tribe in 33 innings.

The Yankees collected one in the abbreviated Monday game. The Senators were blanked Tuesday, the Cardinals won a game with a lone tally Wednesday, and the Yanks inhaled nine goose eggs yesterday. Shutting out the Yanks, even in the spring, is some stunt.

That slugging team was held scoreless only once last season, by Lefty Grove of the Athletics on September 4, the game being a new large league record by the way.

DAZZLING OUTFIELD WORK

The [illegible] New York aren't [illegible] but they can [illegible] did. But the [illegible] the outfielders were [illegible].

[illegible] Richbourg and Jack Smith [illegible] and Wertz [illegible] spots, but [illegible] knocked off on three different [illegible] plays.

It [illegible] bases, to put [illegible] three dual innings in one [illegible].

Later Miller Huggins, who manages [illegible] temperamental Yanks [illegible] impressed by the [illegible].

"Looks like the best ball club we've tackled down here in the south," he remarked to your correspondent. "We are running into a lot of real pitching, and even when we do hit the ball there's somebody in front of it. The Braves are hustling and taking chances, and if they can keep it up they'll beat a lot of ball clubs.

"The way that outfield is going makes me think it's a great combination. The stuff they have pulled on us this spring would do any gang credit in a World Series. Those birds are always on the job and they play the game smartly.

"That southpaw Brandt looks a few miles better than most newcomers. He knows how to pitch and has plenty in his arm. I don't see how he stayed out around the coast for the past few years, when left handers are being paged by every ball club.

"Hornsby will put the big punch in the club and fill out a great combination around second base. And that's the big thing as far as fielding goes, in any ball club."

HUG LIKES BRAVES

Mister Huggins does not pop off unnecessarily, and he really has been impressed by the Braves. He believes in the old-fashioned knock down and drag out methods of baseball. That's why he has surrounded himself with sluggers. And he perceives that Manager Slattery is working along the same lines.

Brandt's pitching against the Yankees was a fine exhibition. Any stranger should be expected to tremble and fret with maulers like Ruth, Gehrig, Meusel and Lazzeri swinging bats across the plate. But Edward from the far parts was as cool as an icicle. He passed the first batter, but after that had as much control as any pitcher wants. He kept the sluggers swinging after strikes down around their knees and was discovered for just two hits in five rounds. The tall boy looks like a find.

Wertz finished up just as efficiently as he did over in Tampa Saturday. This young man apparently has come into his own. He pitches with the utmost calmness and he gets the ball just where he tries to put it. Experts like Umpire Sherwood Magee, Bucky Harris and Babe Ruth agree that Henry John should be a regular and successful big leaguer this season.

English High Baseball

From the talk around the school the coming year promises to be the best English high has had in many. The school baseball team has enough veteran material to be rated favorite in the fight for local honors and the class team candidates are numerous.

HUB BOY ON FOREIGN FIELD

BOSTON SCHOOLBOYS WILL WATCH THE CHICAGO CUBS

This season, for Freddie Maguire, old Boston Latin star, is playing second for that team. Freddie starred at Holy Cross and was grabbed by Manager McGraw of the Giants. He was sent to Toledo from where the Cubs bought him for $50,000. The Braves offered $40,000 for the Boston boy.

Braves Notes

Dick Rudolph, now boss of the Waterbury club, is in town looking for ball players. As Richard has the inside track with the Braves and Mister Huggins, he should do well here. Natural to see him around.

Bill Dunlap, the big left-hander from Lynn, has made such an impression in the morning workouts that he will keep along until the club gets North. The kid looks a great pitcher in the rough and will be held to get instructions in fundamentals.

Charlie Robertson has rejoined the team and was out at work today. He will be used in one of the exhibition games early next week.

Babe Ruth has blisters on his large paws and keeps them wrapped in white tape all through the game. He hasn't started to lose the ball yet. He always is a slow starter. Same applies to Hornsby and Gehrig.

Peplosky used as a pinch hitter tapped a slow ball for a loop single to left. This makes two hits, a walk and a sacrifice for the kid in four rescue appearances. Not at all bad.

B. U. EVENING FIVE WINS FROM LIBERAL ARTS, 27-15

The crack Boston University evening division basketball team won its sixth straight victory at the B. U. gymnasium last night when it easily defeated the College of Liberal Arts championship freshmen team 27 to 15.

The freshmen team had won its last eight games, but last night the "Night Owls" were too strong for them. The only factor that marred the victory was the loss of Weiss, star guard, for the year. He was butted in the eye and rushed to hospital and had the optic stitched.

John Eberfield and Weiss starred for winners while Nason played a good game for the losers.

Freddie Maguire Is Now Cub Regular

The Chicago newspaper situation has become very critical in Boston during the past few weeks, a whole bunch of Maguires grabbing up the meagre allotment to make sure that Freddie, the $50,000 relative, is getting a firm grip on the second base assignment with the Cubs.

Despatches in the last couple of days quote Manager Joe McCarthy as declaring that Maguire will hold down the berth, filling the wide spot left vacant when Earl (Sparky) Adams was traded to Pittsburgh with Pete Scott, outfielder, for Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, the gardener who became the bad boy of the Pirate outfit in the 1927 semester.

Freddie Maguire came up with the Cubs last fall, when he was lifted from Toledo in the American Association, where he was the fielding sensation during three seasons.

One of the first acts of Joe McCarthy when made manager of the Cubs was to acquire Freddie, a Roxbury boy. McCarthy was manager of Louisville in the same league and he remembered the games Maguire broke up and whacked out of Louisville's standing into that of Toledo.

Out at Catalina Island—the big Wrigley chewing gum spot off Los Angeles—Maguire has picked up in this year's spring training session the pace he left off last fall and in the early training games has turned in some [illegible] ground stops and aerial captures. His hitting, too, has been lusty.

It is half a dozen years now since Freddie was graduated from Holy Cross, where he played second base for the three-year Jack Barry coached nines. Before that he was the individual star of the Boston Latin school teams, winning the unique distinction of being picked both as all-scholastic second baseman and catcher.

Three years ago the Braves offered $40,000 for Maguire, but a price of $50,000 was set by Toledo on the untalkative player. The year before he could have been bought for $15,000.

Freddie joined the Giants immediately on being graduated from Holy Cross. He cut in on a couple of World Series as a utility man then, but because Frank Frisch was a fixture at second, was sent out as a farmer to Toledo.

Apparently, he is all set now with the Cubs—which explains why Chicago papers are at a premium in Boston, what with the [illegible] and sisters in [illegible] Roxbury and the Maguires [illegible] Dudley and other streets of [illegible] snapping up all the supply.

Brookline Tank Meet

It is quite likely that the Brookline High swimming team will take on a team composed of the leading Greater Boston high school swimmers in a dual meeting next week. It would prove great competition as there are some worthwhile swimmers around the city who could make Brookline show its very best to win.

MAYFAIR in London is famous for the many noted people who have lived there—Beau Brummel, Sheridan, Nell Gwynne, the Prince of Wales and the richest peers of England.

The streets of Mayfair weave in and out in a network of designs, and it is in these that the Hart Schaffner & Marx research staff saw the possibilities of new patterns and fabrics

From the irregular intersection of the Mayfair streets and lanes we have built up these new designs. You see five of them pictured above. They are to be found in all the new shades of Lovat, Algerian browns and tans, and Stone greys

SOX STARTING LINEUP STILL A MYSTERY

By JOE CASHMAN

Bradenton, Fla., March 16—A week from today the Red Sox begin their pilgrimage northward. Three weeks from today they will have completed their preparations for the long grind ahead of them.

Such being the case, it might naturally be supposed that it is possible at this time, to comment with a fair degree of accuracy on the team's chances in the race which is right around the corner.

But, believe it or not, in fact it promises to be impossible to make any predictions about the Red Sox until the [illegible] if that soon.

For one can't figure on the possibilities of [illegible] which doesn't exist, and [illegible] have yet to spring [illegible] as a regular [illegible] is concerned.

LINEUP STILL DOUBTFUL

After more than three weeks of practice, [illegible] two players, outside of [illegible] who seem sure of [illegible] there are no indications [illegible] will clinch berths [illegible].

Bill Ca[illegible] has proved that he [illegible] candidates [illegible] there were [illegible] and that every job was [illegible]

The [illegible] campaign [illegible] deed, [illegible] Fenway [illegible] along [illegible] equal [illegible]

He [illegible] start of [illegible] which [illegible] jority of [illegible] he proba[illegible] decision [illegible] after the [illegible]

KEN AND FLAGGY SURE

Ken Williams and Ira Flagstead are the only players who appear sure to be regulars. They promise to be fixtures in left and right fields, respectively, as they both have been stars for several seasons and there are few men in either league today who could keep them on the bench.

Denny Williams is leading in a three-cornered race for the other garden berth, but he is being hard pressed by Arlie Tarbert and Douglass Taitt.

Denny has had far more experience than either of his rivals but he hasn't started to hit yet unless he does pretty soon, either Tarbert who was with the club last year or Taitt, both of whom are sticking well, will be out in front.

And, if Denny does get slugging he will have to [illegible] as both rivals are expected to be retained for the season.

The infield [illegible] Phil Todt at first, [illegible] second, Bill Rogell at third [illegible] at short was [illegible] at the close of last [illegible] but some changes in [illegible] are likely before another campaign gets under way.

Rogell and Regan seem [illegible] certain of their berths but "Buddy" Myer is going [illegible] because of [illegible] ability is likely to supplant [illegible].

And, [illegible] Jack will enter the race for the first base job [illegible] who is on the [illegible] list now with a wrenched [illegible] was weak with the stick last season and he hasn't had much [illegible] the platter down here. He will have to improve to stay in there.

PLAY DODGERS TODAY

"Red" Collins is also around, playing great ball and anxious to hold down any of the infield berths. He will be present [illegible] too.

As if [illegible] tion for [illegible] inner do[illegible] Cicero, [illegible] tend with for the time being, at any rate.

It is [illegible] the survival of the [illegible] this year, and the men who finally emerge [illegible] to do Boston proud in the American League race.

Schaaf is going to be a [illegible] heavyweight of that there [illegible] no doubt. He can take punishment and give more. He is a two-fisted fighter, with none of the fancy business of boxing. Every fight he has [illegible]

SAILORS BACK ERNIE

The blond sailor boy, who will be backed by [illegible] sailors [illegible] Monday [illegible] perfect condition for the appearance [illegible] He will wind up his training at Toland's gymnasium tomorrow afternoon and will be ready [illegible] Monday [illegible]

Schaaf will [illegible] if he succeeds in whipping Solomon. He remembers distinctly that he knocked Gibson out in two rounds, and that [illegible] a fiery 10 round fight with the Baker Boy.

CLASSY PRELIM CARD.

Tom Goodwin has completed his preliminary card which will consist of four [illegible] and fancy [illegible] It [illegible] Goodwin [illegible] before his [illegible] Bob Jack [illegible] a promising young [illegible] and Timmy [illegible] of the city will meet in the eight-round semi-final also a return match [illegible] fans who want to see Roy [illegible] of Halifax defeated may have their opportunity [illegible] Boston boxer.

In a third [illegible] round bout Griffin of Chelsea, who flashed a brilliant performance against Tommy [illegible] a few weeks ago, will meet Frank Badl[illegible] of Lynn, [illegible] while in the six-round opening bout [illegible] of Charlestown, a terrific puncher who has not met a professional defeat, will tackle the busy [illegible] of Lynn who is known all over the New England circuit as a satisfactory fighter.

Red Sox Notes

Big Charlie Ruffing made his first appearance of the season on the [illegible] in the third game against Baltimore and made a fine showing holding the Bisons scoreless for the three innings he worked.

The veterans started the game and piled up a seven [illegible] first two innings. Then the [illegible] went in and maintained it.

He refused to comment on any of the [illegible] he has seen other than [illegible] be satisfied with [illegible]

He also refused to say anything [illegible] meeting [illegible] he recently called, except to announce that most of their deliberations were over [illegible] and [illegible] regulations had been agreed upon.

Phil Todt had his injured knee X-rayed today. The plates show that he suffered nothing more serious than a wrench when he fell in the game with Baltimore at Auburndale Wednesday. He will be out of the game but a few days.

Herb Thomas, who was with the Braves at the start of last season and then sent to the Giants along with Benton and Taylor for Greenfield, McQuilland and Farrell, is back in the 'bushes.' He played third base for Buffalo against the Sox. Eddie Taylor, Gus Felix, Oscar Reickle and Mickey Devine are other former Hub players with the Bisons.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"A GARDEN in every large city in the United States is the dream of Tex Rickard," declared Mr. Boston as he dropped in from out of the clouds today. "The master promoter believes it will be an easy matter to secure the necessary attractions for his string of Gardens in this amusement crazed age.

"Boxing, hockey, bike racing, horse shows, wrestling, basketball, an occasional circus and exhibits will keep the Gardens occupied. It will be possible to book some attractions for the [illegible]

"Rickard's North Station arena will be ready by November. It will be opened by a monster boxing show. Tex doesn't intend to wait until the fall to launch his Boston Garden Club. He has already secured a lease for several dates at Braves Field. He would like to open with a ten-round bout between Jack Sharkey and Jack Delaney. Tex believes that this attraction would draw $150,000, as Sharkey and Delaney are both New England fighters, have national standing and large followings.

"Rickard believes that it will be only a matter of a few months before he will dominate the sporting game in Boston. He says he will secure this result by staging bigger and better attractions.

"'WHAT is the biggest house a boxing show ever drew in Boston?' Rickard recently asked me.

"'Sharkey and Maloney have the record with a mark of $56,000,' I answered.

"'That will be an easy one to crack,' laughed Tex. 'I sold $75,000 to Boston people for the Sharkey-Maloney bout at the Yankee Stadium last May. If they will come all the way to New York for a big match, what would they do if they have a few important contests dropped in on their front lawn?

"'I consider Boston one of the best sport towns in the country. In time, I may stage a world's championship match there. That is why I secured rights to promote shows at Braves Field. I want to have the [illegible] time the [illegible] up.

"'They used to tell me Philadelphia was a 50-cent fight town. Then I gave them Dempsey and Tunney and drew $1,800,000. I think Boston is every bit as good a sport center as Philadelphia.

"'CHARLEY ADAMS tells me the Bruins turn them away when they play at the Arena. We'll give them more seats at our North Station Arena. Even then I suppose the place won't be able to accommodate all those who wish to see the Bruins in action.

"'John Chapman has tipped me that the bike races drew a wave going at Revere during the summer months. Chapman figures they'll do even better at our new arena. He is already making plans for a six-day bike race which will be staged in Boston next spring.

"'Boston is just as big a sport town as the promoters care to make it. I intend to have it stand with New York and Chicago as one of the best in the land.'

"RICKARD will find some stiff competition in the fight racket here in Boston. Sergeant Eddie Mack of the Argonne Club and Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk Club don't intend to let Tex have the right of way. They will battle with him from the kickoff.

"Mack has an ideal spot for shows with Mechanics Building and Braves Field at his disposal. Goodwin has Fenway Park and the Arena.

"One of the reasons for Rickard's success in New York is that he has no competition, due to the fact the Garden is the only big indoor arena, while he has the ball parks tied up. It will be a different story in Boston. Rickard will have to offer his best attractions to get the edge on fellows like Mack and Goodwin."

Baldness Overcome

Science is conquering baldness! The Thomas', nationally known hair and scalp specialists, have proven in thousands of cases during the past fifteen years that by scientific stimulation of the scalp and positive elimination of the baldness-producing germ, an abundant growth of hair can be produced on heads that are bald. Eighty-five per cent of all cases of baldness have resulted from external disorders and in all of these cases it is possible for new hair to be grown by The Thomas' method.

Scientific treatment successful for 15 years

The Thomas' original treatment is adapted to each individual's particular scalp disorder. It consists of the use of the most modern electrical and mechanical therapeutic agents and Thomas' created formulae, applied under the direction of skilled Thomas' specialists. These men do nothing but examine and treat scalp disorders, such as dandruff, falling hair, itching scalp and baldness. Let one of them examine your scalp today without charge or obligation.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

The Massachusetts Golf Association announces that the State handicap cards are ready to be issued. Francis has seen them all and therefore is in a position to state with authority. The former open and national champion states that Finlay all but carried the trap in front of the second green at Wollaston and added that the drive off the 17th tee, despite the trailing wind, was the longest he ever saw.

When asked as to whether or not the desire for distance off the tees would eventually play havoc with Finlay's game, Francis stated that the Harvard man was too well balanced to allow anything to retard his development. Ouimet is of the opinion that Finlay will, within a few years, be the country's ranking golfer.

BOSTON ENTERS AL SPRIANO

Albert Spriano, 160-pound and [illegible]-pound two-states Mass. and R. I. Y. M. C. A. champion, from the Boston Y. M. C. A. is entered in the 160-pound class for the New England championships at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. on Saturday March 24.

He has not been defeated this year. He has competed in eight matches this season wrestling two classes in each match. At the two-states meet, he was two pounds overweight for the 160-pound class so he ran two miles, went into the steam room, made his weight, then went to the mats where he wrestled six men to win the championships in the 160-pound and 175-pound classes.

Mario Damiel, captain of the Boston Y. M. C. A. team, and 26-pound two-states Y. M. C. A. champion, is entered in the 123-pound class. Odilio Marchioni, Boston Y. M. C. A. heavyweight, is another entrant.

Conway takes you behind the scenes. He gives you a glimpse into Tex Rickard's secrets and the "inside" story on the leading characters in the great heavyweight drama.

Conway has a better knowledge of the heavyweight situation than any other sporting writer on account of his contacts with Rickard, Tunney, Dempsey, Risko, Sharkey, Heeney and Delaney and the men who direct their affairs.

This remarkable article will be published in tomorrow's Boston Evening American. Don't miss it.

Martha Lee Talks About Baking

Martha Lee Radio Chat as Broadcast From Station WLOE

TRUE to my word, I have for you today the foundation recipe for Plain Cake, used by Miss Marie L. Casteen, dietitian of the Hotel Statler, in her recent cookery lesson in the Martha Lee kitchen.

Martha Lee

PLAIN CAKE—½ c. butter, 3 tbsp. shortening, 1½ c. sugar, 3 eggs, 4 tsp. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt, 3 c. pastry flour (after sifting), 1¼ c. milk, 1½ tsp. vanilla.

Cream butter and shortening, add sugar slowly. Cream mixture well. Add unbeaten eggs. Beat until light and fluffy. Sift salt, baking powder and flour. Add to creamed mixture milk, then flour and alternate until all has been added. Add flavoring. Turn into greased tins. Bake at 375 F. for 15 or 20 minutes.

Chocolate Butter Frosting—1 egg yolk, 1 tsp. melted butter, 4 tbsp. milk. Pinch salt, 2 oz. melted chocolate, 2 c. confectioner's sugar, ½ tsp. vanilla.

Add butter to melted chocolate, stir until smooth. Beat egg yolk, add milk, salt and vanilla. Add part of sugar, then chocolate and butter. Add sugar until mixture will spread.

(Recipe given yesterday.)

Lady Baltimore Filling—2 c. boiled frosting, ¼ c. seeded raisins, ¼ c. chopped nuts, ¼ c. chopped figs.

Lord Baltimore Filling—2 c. boiled frosting, flavored with ¼ tsp. orange extract and 1 3 tsp. lemon juice, ¼ c. macaroon dust, 2 tbsp. almonds (blanched and cut), 2 tbsp. pecans, cut fine, 6 candied cherries.

Use plain cake, bake in square tins. Three layers to cake. Put filling between layers but not on top. Color boiled frosting pale pink. Decorate with Angelica and Maraschino cherries.

Washington Pie—Plain Cake. Slit layer of cake. On bottom half spread with raspberry jam.

Put top on. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Strawberry Meringue Cake—Plain Cake. Meringue. Two egg whites, pinch salt, 6 tbsp. sugar.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar slowly. Continue beating. Cover top of cake mixture with meringue. Bake. When baked, cool. Cover top of meringue with strawberries, then cover with whipped cream. Garnish with strawberries.

Austrian Coffee Cake—Spread following mixture on top of cake batter: Two tbsp. sugar, 1 tbsp. butter, ½ tsp. cinnamon.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Crossing Tees and Doting Eyes seems to be a very good habit this Spring, for it has evidently inspired the designs displayed in the smartest new chiffons, which have stripes and satin coin dots woven into their backgrounds. Many of the latest featherweight woolens also are striped or dotted in sheen.

Far from Warping the Warp, the fine threads of artificial silk that are woven through both warp and woof of the latest novelty has come to impart a lustre that vastly improves the surface of these lightweight woolens. These self tone silk threads have replaced the tinsel strands that appeared in novelty woolens of last year.

How to Dress Half-Long Hair Attractively

The demi bob, a coiffure innovation for those who are letting their hair grow out. Long hair is coming back, stylists say, and Ruth Holly, film player, shows how to attractively dress half-long hair. First comb out and marcel, then make a "swirl" at the back with right and left ends, tuck underneath with hairpins and you have it.

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen years of age. I am considered "not bad to look at."

I have been extremely busy, the last few years with high school work, taking evening courses, and have overlooked making "boy friends."

I am not a flapper, but rather old-fashioned, sedate, sensible and serious. I seldom go to dances and [illegible].

A while ago I met a young man [illegible] the nicest [illegible]. A few weeks ago, I again met him and he asked me to go to the theater with him.

I gave my acceptance to his invitation, and I think we both enjoyed the evening very much. However, he has not asked me again, although he still seems interested in me. How can I interest him further, please?

CARLOTTA

HAVE you asked him to come to see you at home? It is your privilege as a woman, to cultivate the friendship of a young man who interests you, by extending an invitation to him to visit your home. He may be waiting for just such an invitation.

Why do you not invite him to Sunday-night tea or supper? Or you might include him among your guests some evening when you are entertaining a few friends. Home is the very sweetest background for a girl's friendships.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 18 years old. My mother will not allow me ever to bring company home or meet them out, anywhere. Please advise me as to what I can do to convince my mother that I am old enough to have company.

MOONBEAM.

IT is natural and right that a girl should have friends and wish to meet them now and then, whether she is old or young. Can you not convince your mother, dear Moonbeam, that you need the companionship of young people of your own age? Tell her you wish to entertain them at home so that she also may meet them and see for herself that they are suitable friends. That is so much better than sneaking out to meet girls and boys on street corners or other doubtful rendezvous, as girls are sometimes tempted to do when they are not permitted to have friends.

Famous Composers

By COZETTE DOUGLASS

WHEN we listen to the haunting melody of one of Chopin's nocturnes how few of us realize that he was but following the path blazed by John Field, who introduced this style of composition.

John Field, who was one of the most noted of English composers and pianists, was born in Dublin on July 26, 1782. His early instruction in music was received from his grandfather, a well known organist and his father, who was a violinist. Although Field was an apt pupil, he was apprenticed to the famous Clementi, who was at the time at the height of his success. Clementi taught the boy, but Field had to work in the salesrooms of Clementi's shop demonstrating the pianos to customers.

In 1802 Clementi took Field to Paris, where he created a genuine sensation by his rendition of Bach's and Handel's fugues. In 1804 he accompanied Clementi to Russia, and when there the master and the pupil parted company, Field remaining in Russia as a teacher and gaining a reputation as a pianist. In 1832 he made a brilliant debut in London, playing one of his own concertos at the Philharmonic. After his success in England, he went to Paris thence to Belgium, Switzerland and Italy. In Italy, however, his pianistic peculiarities were not appreciated and during his stay in Naples, Field was taken very ill. He lay in a hospital for several months, when he was found and removed therefrom by a Russian family, who took him back to Moscow.

While John Field won fame through his mastery of the piano, yet his compositions are of far more value and of greater importance to musical history. For it was Field who first introduced nocturnes. Previous to his time, a composition was either in the form of a sonata, a rondo, or something of that style.

The illness in Naples had greatly undermined Field's health and he died in Moscow on January 11, 1837.

Fair Play, Boys!

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS.

A BOY lay face downward on the ground. Sobs shook his slender body and tears soaked the dirty handkerchief he held in his hand.

Around him stood a crowd of boys, jeering and hooting.

"Aw, go home and tell your mamma!" shouted one.

"Go on, cry-baby, stick your finger in your eye!" another sang out.

"You're a bum sport!" declared a third, "crying 'cause you got licked!"

Then, in the midst of the laughing, jeering group, the Youngest Teacher appeared. An angry light burned in her eye. An icy coldness sounded in her voice.

"I must say you are a fine lot of sports!" she stated, sweeping the group with her scornful glance. "Does it take twenty of you to punish one poor little fellow?"

And, lo, presto! the gloating, hilarious gang of boys became twenty shame-faced lads with nothing to say.

They liked the youngest Teacher. She could always understand their viewpoint. It had not been so long since she was standing on the side lines, rooting for her own high school team. She knew just how much the word "sportsmanship" means to boys and girls, and she was smart enough to use it in other lines besides athletics.

She also knew that it was the age-old trait of "man's inhumanity to man," that led those boys to torment their victim. And before she finished telling them what she thought of their behavior, they were thoroughly ashamed of themselves.

It was this same Youngest Teacher who taught her pupils that a good sportsman is a good loser as well as a good winner. She made them see the BIGNESS of accepting defeat without whining and of enjoying victory without gloating.

She convinced them that cheating on examination is just as bad as cheating in games and shows an utter lack of sportsmanship.

She made them understand that lying is the refuge of a coward, and that a true sport is never afraid to look anybody in the eye and tell the truth—regardless of consequences.

She did not tell them that being kind, or studying hard or doing your duty is essential to sportsmanship. Because she knew they wouldn't believe that, and she had no idea of telling them anything that might lessen the force of this sportsmanship idea.

She played up the idea of fairness. The boys and girls responded to that teaching, because they were just at the age to value that particular virtue above all others.

One day in the English class she assigned composition work on the subject of "Sportsmanship." She told the boys to write down the essentials of sportsmanship and to give an illustration of one of those essentials. She told the girls in the class to write a short story around the idea of sportsmanship. The enthusiasm with which the class wrote and recited that lesson was proof sufficient of their keen interest and insight.

"Sportsmanship" will prove a valuable implement for other teachers to wield. And there are many experienced ones who will agree that the Youngest Teacher knew her subject "by heart."

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. In our class at high school the girls have formed a club. A few of the girls can dance, while others can't. Can you suggest something for these girls to do?

2. Also what is the proper way for a young lady to dress when she is to attend a high school basketball game?

3. Again, some of the girls wish to get information from different colleges concerning their courses. What is the principle of getting them? How is this done?

B.

I AM such a dance enthusiast that I urgently recommend that those girls who do not know how to dance immediately learn! It is such a delightful, rhythmic, thoroughly enjoyable accomplishment that every person—young or old—should have a "fine time" whenever they find the opportunity to dance. There is altogether too little rhythm in our lives, and in dancing we are offered such a high-hearted opportunity to "tune in" with the tempo of the charming forces of the world. By all means, urge these young people to learn to dance. In these days, when the steps are so comparatively simple, when all that one needs is a sense of rhythm—native or acquired—there is no excuse for a person, especially a young person, not to dance. Often what retards a person's learning to dance is self consciousness, especially when one is in the "in-between" age.

2. She would wear sports clothes. And, as you know, sports clothes were never better looking than they are today. And—a warning—she should not be careless about one detail of her attire, for the informality of sports clothes often makes carelessness in grooming a temptation. Every detail of her attire and of her grooming should be impeccable.

3. Write to the secretary of each college that you are considering. If you can find her name, use it; otherwise, address your letter to "The Secretary of —— College." Ask her to be so kind as to send you a catalogue of the college, and, if you have any special questions concerning the curriculum or concerning special courses in which you are interested, present these questions. It is very easy and simple to get this information, and you will find the replies to your questions and requests thoroughly and cordially answered.

And, dear friend, will you let me whisper to you that college is spelled like that—not with the second vowel an a. It would be terrible for you to write to a secretary of a college, and misspell college!

There is a very helpful little book that you will probably be able to get in your library called, "Choosing a College." I am very much interested in girls going to college, and if at any time I can help, you would do me a great favor if you will write me.

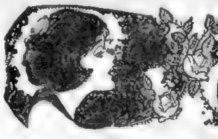
This Day in Our History

THE United States Military Academy at West Point, New York, was founded on March 16, 1802. The academy was formally opened on the 4th of July with ten cadets present. The site of the academy had been a former military post.



"Jerry" by ELENORE MEHERIN AUTHOR of "CHICKIE"

A Story of Mad Moonlight Kisses and a Wonderful Young Girl

CHAPTER 40

JERRY wound her arms about her hunched knees and shivered. Cold at 7 o'clock these mornings. Fine to be the man of the family but breakfast in bed when the sun comes up is nicer.

She gazed over to the bed adjoining her own where Stephanie was sleeping. Strange yet, having Stephanie here—having a sister. Strange yet good—good every way you thought of it.

"Good for me!" Jerry turned to the reservoir and Brookline view.

"I must be a terribly female thing by nature or I never could have sunk so deep in it," she now thought as she slowly poked one foot from under the blankets to the floor . . . and shivered [illegible]. Well —whether she liked the cold or the routine and ordered life, she had to take it now. So that was good!

Had to take it or starve! Someone had to hustle.

"Especially since we like thin bacon and fresh eggs!" she went padding to the kitchen and whistled as she cooked breakfast.

She did this each morning, bringing a tray to Stephanie's bed, summoning Marza with an impudent "Get your carcass in here, old dear. You're not the baby any more!"

She plunged with a brazen gaiety into the new job, taking a Calvinistic pleasure in the rigorous discipline.

Each morning as she went down the hall, she paused before the pot of flowers. They lasted bitterly long. She fingered them and reminded herself in a kind of childish ritual: "I'm out on my own now! Got to be sufficient to myself—utterly!

"No woman who wants to hold a man can afford to lose herself.

"That's Marza' supremacy. She never merged her identity with another's. She kept herself to herself. And so she keeps others to her.

"What man wants a pale shadow of his own thoughts? A synthetic distillation of his own emotions? That's what the average wife becomes—a shadow; and that's what she gives—no wonder husbands are bored! There are mirrors when one wants a reflection."

She developed an elaborate philosophy of independence. And was appalled that it did not suffice nor sooth her.

But she was determined that no one should guess her insane persistent yearning for him—the want that made her start inwardly at the mention of his name.

Above all, Saxon should not see her wilt. He would never find her reproaching him with that execrable feminine: "You took all I had! See how you've hurt me!"

No—she'd played the game and lost. Her fault as much as his, perhaps. Anyway, she'd lost. And no one should see her whimper.

So she wrote breezy answers to his letters. If she had been taunting with a gay kid sweetness before, she would be madly, thrillingly audacious now.

She Plunged With a Brazen Gayety into the New Job

And she said of the flowers:

"Saxon, ole darling, you puzzled and wondered what you should send being as we twain are one no more, didn't you? They are brazen creatures, these gaudy flowers, like the hussy who received them. And they've a flaunting way of saying, Fare thee well, ole dear, and if forever, then forever fare thee well. That's always a rather sad message, I suppose, but they were high, dear years we had, weren't they? Perhaps we won't either of us ever know such a fine gorgeous sweetness again. I'm an awful greedy person and hope. Yet if there comes another time, it won't be the same time. I'm glad about it—clean glad. And as you've often remarked, why belittle an emotion because it doesn't remain the same in 1923 as it was in 1922. I better stop or I may wax pollyanish—

"This job isn't so bad. I spent all today with a funny little German who imports from God knows where some very fine etchings. I'm [illegible] sent me down to buy the best of them. I had a fine time.

"[illegible] has landed the job of decorating the Wilsons' new place. Have you seen it? I'll have a hand in the color schemes. It will be exciting, as they've no end of money and like to spend it."

She overdid it.

"What of you and Saxon?" said Marza one night as Jerry waited for Hugh Hammond.

"Nothing," said Jerry, putting her hands on her saucy hips and giving Marza an impudent wink. "[illegible]! Did you fear there [illegible]"

They were home a month. She hadn't seen him. Twice on his hurried trips from Springfield he had phoned. She had not been home.

Now—just as Hugh, very blond, very cultured and smiling, reached the hall, the phone rang.

It was Saxon: "Hello—I'm coming up . . . caught you home at last."

"Oh, why didn't you let me know? I've got a date."

"Break it." With a cool possessive air.

"If you'd given me half a chance I would."

"Well—for heaven's sake, Jerry it's five months since I've seen you. Can't you break a date?"

"I'll come back early. I'll be here at 11:30. Come then."

"Too late! I've got to catch the 8 o'clock train back in the morning. Must be a pretty heavy date if it's so impossible to break it."

"Don't be snooty! I can't very well break a date when the person is standing here in the hall waiting and we've got tickets for the theater."

"As you please! Good bye."

She felt assaulted—burning—weak. She stood at the 'phone biting her lips—fighting desperately against the impulse to fling herself furiously against Hugh Hammond.

She went to the theatre and was utterly miserable. She kept going over that phone conversation and not hearing a line of the play.

She Told Herself Angrily, "Pretty Darned High Hat"

She told herself angrily: "Pretty high-hatty—pretty damn high-hatty!"

The next day she got a rather penitent note: "Sorry I was so rough, but I did want to see you and I can't quite figure your attitude. You remember I told you about the Pe[illegible]nings' new place and that I would land the job for you?

"Well, that won't be finished for some time . . . but they want some drapes and other things for their house in town. Will you go out there today and look the place over? I'm enclosing a card. There may not be any one there. But the maids will take you through. Better luck next time I hope. I'm terribly disappointed."

Mary Eunice Pennings received Jerry. She was tall—but her slender frame made her very willowy. Yes—she was appealing with that soft, brown hair and shadowed blue eyes. She had charm.

She said very pleasantly: "You're Miss King—an artist friend of Saxon's. Well, let's have a look around. We want the mantel changed for one thing. I'd like a first-rate mural out there in the hall . . .

"And now in here——"

They were in the living room. It looked on the street. A machine was slowing at the curb. Someone getting out—Saxon.

For a wild moment the room and Jerry's heart blazed. Oh—calling for her. Delayed in town and following her out here.

Then she noticed Mary Eunice also gazing from the window. And heard Mary Eunice saying: "Well—look about. You can't get any suggestions from me. Make your survey—and let me hear from you Monday. I won't be here over the week-end . . ."

He was coming up the steps—sleek in grateful. Now his hat was off and the thick tan hair lifted in the breeze.

Jerry moved into the shadows. She heard Mary Eunice opening the door: heard her husky: "Hello, dear!"

They went with a little run down the steps. Off for the week-end together.

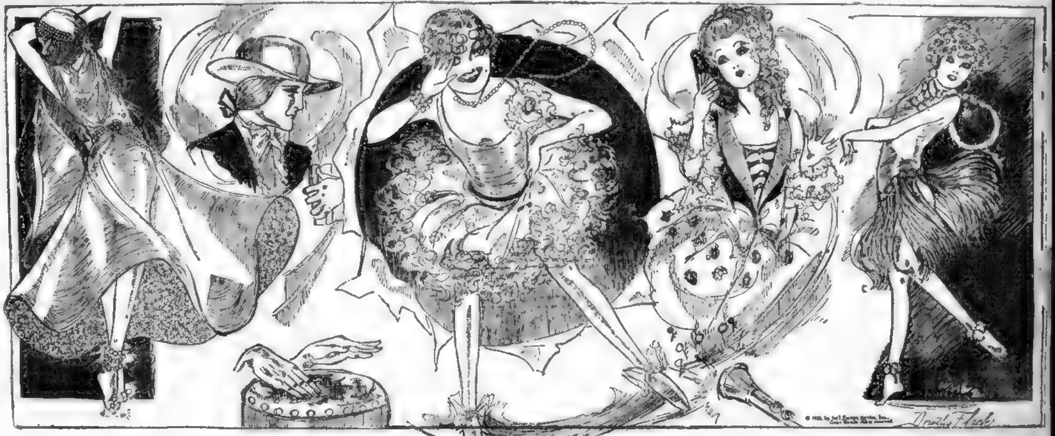
The Jazz Girl

Were Her Ancestors Puritans or Barbarians?

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack



WHO were her ancestors—this jazz-mad girl of today? Whence comes this whole-hearted abandonment to rhythm and tune? Who taught her feet to twinkle in that dazzling fashion?

Were they some primitive barbarians whose feet stepped the intricate, mad measures of tribal dances to the beat of a tom tom? Were they the veiled women of a harem brought up to dance for the pleasure of their lords, to twirl in strange, transparent skirts until they fell exhausted in a frenzied ecstasy?

Or were they staid Puritans who allowed no joy to enter their lives, who cast out pleasure with so stern a hand that their grandchildren have inherited a triple share of love for it?

No one can tell. But we know that she is here with her twinkling toes and glad smile—this enigma we know as the jazz g double chin may be a misdemeanor or that arteries and nerves may be as easily cooked in fat as a cat with butter. Many use their body as a clothes horse and are only concerned with the parts that show.

Dr. Dorsey Tells How Laboratories Reveal New Facts on Life

Startling facts come from physiological laboratories. They force us to revise our conceptions of life and death of youth and old age. All protoplasm is potentially immortal. Man is protoplasm. Hence . . . But man is [illegible] complex protoplasm—an organism of infinite complexity, of tissues and organs and systems greatly differentiated, some more, some less. This mass of protoplasm functions, lives, because these parts work together for a common end. They are marvelously balanced. Upset the balance: disease; if the balance cannot be restored, the machine is broken. A few minor parts may be restored; a few may be dispensed with. The machine breaks when a vital part breaks. It never runs again.

ISOLATE the liver or the brain cell and study it a lifetime. Liver as function and cell as behavior are as meaningless and as lifeless as a last year's bird nest. The parts of the human body are meaingless in and by themselves. Put some cells in a glass jar and watch them grow. Where does this lead us? These cells are immortal—in "proper medium."

Each of the billions of cells in the human body must also be kept in proper medium. Those cells themselves are the medium. On their own shoulders rest the burden of keeping that medium proper; they and they alone can right the machine, they and they alone know the levers. If they cannot reverse there comes a crash. The machine is broken.

Nothing yet has come from the laboratory to give us hope that the crash is not inevitable. All vital processes are reversible; they must be. To live is to keep making compensations: changes, backward and forward. Simple organisms have it in themselves to make these compensations; they have their dynamic equilibrium in their own hands, as it were.

Man does not. It is the price he pays for hands. Hands wear out. Even brain cells. We cannot grow new hands or new brains. They grow up together, though of different heritage, the brain being far more ancient, hence more enduring. They live together, a pin-prick on the finger may be the death of the brain.

THE break may come from within, or from without, or from any one of a vast number of causes. Three out, all out. So runs the game of life. The number of our outs—or innings—is set in our inheritance and buried from sight in the complex mechanism which is ours for a while. We can burn it up or jolly it along. But beyond a certain point there seems to come a limit to its mileage. The machine wears out because it is that kind of a machine. It dies because sooner or later the Marksman of Death strikes a vital spot.

Pearson in his Chances of Death pictures a Bridge of Life across which is a trickle of humanity. They are under the fire of the five Marksmen, one for each Age. They fire with different weapons, speeds and degree of precision. The first Marksman concentrates a deadly fire upon Infancy—before as well as after birth; "beating down young lives with the bones of their ancestors." The second Marksman aims a machine-gun at Childhood; his fire is concentrated, the loss is less appalling. The third shoots at Youth with a bow and arrow, there is no great loss. The fourth fires slowly at Maturity with a blunderbus; his hits are scattered. The fifth Marksman of Death is a sharpshooter, no one can escape the Death of Senility.

Dr. Reed Writes on Teaching Versus Nursing as a Profession

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

MANY a young woman, resolving upon a vocational career rather than a normal physiological career of wifehood and motherhood, hesitates to determine whether she will take up teaching or nursing. I am too discreet a man to undertake a comparison of these two great professions. I have heard it said that comparisons are odious. I feel, however, that a few unusual thoughts prompted by the brilliant Geraldine Coster may be helpful in reaching a decision by those who are about to try out the great problem of life in one or other of the two fields I have mentioned.

At the very outset the candidate for a "career" is confronted by the fact that the teacher has much less chance than the nurse of satisfying her individual ideal. Theoretically there is no more lofty or romantic work in life than that of helping to train the next generation, but the fact remains that the teaching profession still suffers considerably from the stigma of its past inefficiency. There is romance in Florence Nightingale with her lamp, but there is none in the desiccated scholar with his birch. The tradition that a teacher is one whose business it is to make children miserable dies very slowly, and a woman in this position is worse off even than a man.

Nevertheless, teaching can well be a satisfying outlet for a woman's energies, since at its best it makes a strong appeal to the maternal instinct and also gives plenty of scope for original mental work. However, the opportunities which it affords for a misuse of power are much greater than those of nursing. Whereas only the heads of the nursing profession can do much harm, every teacher has the opportunity to misdirect his or her unconscious love of domination. Tyranny and petty cruelty to subordinates is the worst feature of the teaching profession.

The reason is probably that it is much easier to express an instinct freely and directly than to sublimate its expression. The woman teacher who as a rule, sees little of the opposite sex, nearly always suffers from considerable repression, and the power, finding one channel obstructed, rushes with undue force to the other. This makes sublimation exceedingly difficult, hence a strong temptation to express the desire for power by cruelty. Moreover, cruelty at the top of any profession will reproduce itself in subordinates proportionately all down the scale.

The male industrial or office-worker finds it simpler in some ways and more difficult in others to sublimate his instincts than an unmarried woman. It is simpler because he is usually a married man with children and a home, and can find sufficient or almost sufficient scope for his energies between the monotony of his work and the interests and recreations of his family.

Jeritza Declares That Beautiful Elbows Are Rare

By MARIA JERITZA.

The more beautiful your elbows are, the less conspicuous they will be. Like the knee, the elbow should be slender, dimpled, supple, creamy white tipped with pink, dainty, but very little in evidence, even when exposed to view.

Like lovely knees, beautiful elbows are very rare, [illegible]. A [illegible] self-conscious [illegible] inclined to be "all elbows." Her "uneducated elbows" insist on protruding stiffly at odd angles, and are usually bumpy and discolored.

All arm exercises add to the suppleness and grace of the elbows. You will not, I am sure, find a better exercise for developing the symmetry and limberness of both your elbows and your arms than the following:

Stand with your feet about twelve inches apart, your neck and back straight, your weight over the balls of your feet. Lift your arms straight out from your shoulders. Tense your arms, clinch your fists and bring them up under your armpits. From this position, keeping your hands clinched, bring them up and as far around your shoulders as you can. Return to first position. Repeat this exercise ten times. Doesn't it give a fine pull to the muscles of your shoulders, elbows, arms, wrists and hands? I hope you will keep it on your list and practice it every morning.

The woman who immerses herself in a tubful of warm water each day, for her cleansing bath, remaining in the water about ten minutes, is likely to have good looking elbows, other things being equal. For her elbows get a daily soaking in warm soapsuds, which they need to keep them soft and clean, and also a brisk rubbing with a Turkish towel, to stimulate circulation and give them a touch of pink.

If your elbows are discolored for any reason, rub fresh lemon juice into them a few moments before your bath, every day, until the condition is remedied. Or, if you prefer, rub on each elbow a cross section of fresh lemon. If they are very rough and calloused, gently massage them with a cake of pumice stone when you scrub them. Daily scrubbing with a nail-brush and soapsuds should be part of their toilette.

Application of hand lotion each day should help to keep your elbows soft and white, and an occasional cold cream bath will benefit them. If they are scrawny, they should be massaged every night with skin food, applied on your finger-tips with a rotary movement.

Dainty pink and white elbows are such an expression of loveliness that you cannot afford to neglect the simple daily attention which will make them all they should be by the time the bathing season opens, and will add so much to their appearance whenever you wear a sleeveless evening gown.

About a Gorgeous Temple in Bangkok

By TEMPLE MANNING

I CAN think of few things that surpass in splendor the occasions when the King of Siam goes to worship at his temple. In the first place the temple itself, that of the Emerald Buddha, at Wat Phra Keo, Bangkok, is by far the most gorgeous and most imposing of all the temples, and it is guarded by huge stone giants or yaks.

Then the procession of the king is a remarkable one, and lastly, the king himself, who is indeed a wonderful sight to behold. Clad in a gown made of cloth of gold, he wears on his head the sacred pagoda hat which is nine stories high. He is carried from his palace to the long boat awaiting him in the river. This is a magnificent affair rowed by many oarsmen. Under his largest golden umbrella he is propelled in state to the temple.

There he is met by the chief priest who, asking in a long, flowery prayer that the Lord Buddha should shower blessings on His Majesty, sprinkles holy perfume on him, while the lesser priests scatter lotus blossoms before him.

I am told that the King of Siam is one of the wealthiest of all the Eastern kings or monarchs. Certainly, this list which I shall quote, bears out this fact, and makes it seem extremely likely. "He has 20 palaces, a heard of white elephants, ten million dollars' worth of diamonds, pearls, rubies and other precious stones, a principal royal barge with 120 oarsmen, 2000 other royal barges and 24 golden umbrellas." And, I am told, this isn't even the half of it.

"You Said It, Marceline"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

SOME girls fall IN LOVE
With a man;
Some women LOVE.
There is a DIFFERENCE.
But until a girl has known
BOTH, she never will know
The DISTINCTION between Them. To fall in love is Usually a RIOT.
To love—is PEACE,
Of course, the last
Thing YOUTH looks for is Tranquility of spirit,
Therefore it falls IN And OUT of love with Amazing RAPIDITY
And ease. And as
The years go by, the men
A girl subconsciously SELECTS
Grow BETTER or worse,
Incidentally, so does SHE.
For men leave their MARK,
And at the end of each
Love AFFAIR there are Usually a few SCRATCHES or
A bruise or two on every Woman's SPIRIT. But she
Who loves and IS loved,
Though not out of reach of Pain, RISES above all hurt.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for about 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

Salient Points of the Bidding
BIDDING COMPENSATED SUITS

South's Ace Queen of Diamonds is not sufficiently compensatory to warrant a bid of Spades without tops. West, however, also without tops in his suit, holds the requisite side strength to warrant a bid of one Heart, and prefers it to the alternate No Trump bid because one of his suits is not stopped at all and another is doubtfully stopped. North and East passing, South bids one Spade defensively. West lacks rebid strength and passes, but East, with strong support for Hearts, bids two and later three, following North's assist in Spades. South, having been supported by his partner, bids three Spades and secures the contract.

Salient Points of the Play
RUFFING WITH DUMMY TRUMPS

Trick 2. East leads a trump, as Declarer will probably ruff his losing Hearts if permitted to do so. West declines to play the King, anticipating the use of Dummy's Ace for ruffing, which would allow the King to make later if not now played.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

USE STARCH

Mix a little starch with the final rinsing water when washing sheets. This will give them a nice finish. Powdered starch is excellent for polishing silver. If a little starch is added to the water when washing windows, the dirt will come off much more easily. A little powdered starch rubbed over stained wall paper will make it quite clean. Use boiling starch for mending cotton blinds. Take a piece of the same material, soak it in the starch, wring dry, place over the tear, then press with a very hot iron.

WASTING SYMPATHY

By LUCY LOWELL

"I NEED you so. You're the only one who understands me—the only one in all the world—"

Here is at once the most subtly convincing as well as the most flagrantly lying argument ever to be whispered into the ear of woman.

Yes, it's woman who hears it! It's always some woman—or ninety-nine times out of a hundred it is—whose heart softens and glows at the flattering suggestion that she—none but she—can save some husky hulk of a man from whatever dangers and disasters menace him from within and without.

It's some woman, God help her, who jerks her maternal instinct to the fore, holding out willing sacrificing arms to some big male who would be told to go to blazes if he went whining around to one of his own size, and who accordingly, comes sponging on the sentimental streak that lies somewhere in every feminine heart.

It's this same woman who says: "I've got to save him—save his soul. A noble thing to do, save a man's soul—"

Bunk! No man with a soul worth saving is going to peddle it around among his women friends and acquaintances. Any man who is worth a darn considers it his destiny and privilege to work out his own salvation. And if he finds himself unable to do this he prefers perdition to the gesture of winding himself in some woman's skirt.

It is one thing for a man to come to a woman and ask for a bit of help in an honest, straightforward way. Or, rather, it is one sort of a man who will do that.

The sort who strives to excite her sympathy by telling her he needs her so, that she's the only one in the world who ever has understood him, that he will die if she forsakes him—she'd better let him die.

He won't though. He'll find another woman to pull his stuff on.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

Look at your TONGUE every morning!

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Johnny hated his early bed time. In the course of the nightly arguments his mother told him how all the little chicks went to bed with the sun. For a moment he was silent, then he piped up: "But the old hen goes to bed with them, you know, mama!" and so an extra half hour was conceded.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

LOVE-MAKING has lost half its zest for the Gay Lotharios, now that women have come to have so many "weak moments" in their lives.

* * *

When a girl had but ONE "weak moment" in her life it was a real triumph for the wavy-haired heart-breaker to feel that it was HE, whose fatal fascination she had been unable to resist, and to whom she had yielded her maiden kisses.

But, oh di ME! How things have changed! In these days, when one "weak moment" follows so closely on the heels of another, one flirtation crowds another, one kiss follows another, and one romance quickly replaces another in a girl's heart, all the thrill and fervor have gone out of the chase.

A man used to have to be skilful and subtle, to watch and wait and work and worry a bit, to make a girl "weaken." He had to be careful not to frighten or alarm her, he had to have a subtle "line" and be a good stage lover, to make a dent in her heart or her imagination.

* * *

But when he did finally "sell himself" to her and get in solid, he felt the same glow of self-satisfaction that a good salesman feels when he has broken down the sales resistance of a hard customer. And he didn't have much fear of another salesman coming along soon and selling the girl all over again.

* * *

To win a woman, then, was a matter of prowess and conquest and a big tribute to a man's vanity.

But in these days, there is no distinction in being one of the dozen or so "weak moments" in a girl's life. There is nothing memorable about the affair, nothing to make it unique or to make a man feel a little thrill of secret triumph that he has won where all others have failed.

He hasn't even the consolation of feeling wicked or remorseful or regretful. It's all in the week's routine. He knows that as soon as his kisses have dried, she will be freshening her lips with her scented lipstick, preparatory for the NEXT kiss.

* * *

In short, amongst a girl's "weak moments" the first always knows that he won't be the last, and the last can be perfectly sure that he isn't the first.

If he "kisses and rides away," he need have no fear that she is going to waste any time waiting for him to come back, nor any tears regretting him. There is probably another "weak moment" waiting on her doorstep, anyway.

* * *

And one "weak moment" more or less makes little difference in a modern girl's life. But too many "weak moments" are weakening the game for woman!

STOCK MARKET ON A RAMPAGE

to stem the country-wide speculation in stocks which has now been under way for about 10 days.

Wall Street looked for a huge reinvestment demand when the mid-month dividend and interest checks were distributed

The swift advance in a number of the high-grade issues was accepted as evidence of a small floating supply, while the more speculative issues soared on the further retreat of an over-extended short interest.

With the Eastern trunk line executives in session here to consider a proposed plan of consolidation, railroad shares began to attract a larger following. Jersey Central jumped 15 points to a new high record at 315, and New York Central, Wabash common, St. Louis Southwestern and Great Northern preferred all exceeded their previous 1928 maximum prices.

Some profit-taking developed in the early afternoon when Hudson Motors broke from its high of 99⅞ to 94⅞, or more than a point below last night's close, but it caused only a temporary interruption of the advance in other issues.

Chrysler closed at 65 and was accompanied into new high ground by such issues as Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, Interboro Rapid Transit, Cluett Peabody, United Drug, National Team, Rossia Insurance and Sinclair Oil.

American Railway Express, which recently slipped from 138⅜ to 116, rallied from 120 to 130 in today's trading.

PLEADS FOR HUB GRAIN CARGOES

Chicago, March 16 (AP)—Boston, described by a grain exporter of that city as the "finest port in the world," has lost shipping because it no longer is an export grain market, the Interstate Commerce Commission was told today.

The witness, Andrew O'Toole, previously had alluded to himself as the only grain exporter left in the Massachusetts city. The others had been forced out, he contended, because transportation rates to Boston were disadvantageous.

The commission is investigating port grain rates to determine if any change will bring relief.

O'Toole declared Boston was the only large Atlantic port able to dock the largest liners in the transatlantic service. He said he understood the Cunard Steamship Company would restore its sailings from Boston if it could obtain sufficient wheat cargoes to fill out its ballast needs. Boston now is a port of call on the Cunard lines.

A Buffalo representative said transportation costs should be reckoned up to the ship's hold. Boston claims it should end at the rail's end.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Girls in the Parks

Their Proper Protection Calls for MORE POLICEWOMEN

When Mary Driscoll speaks in behalf of the younger girls of this city her views are entitled to respectful consideration.

Miss Driscoll, a useful member of the Massachusetts Commission on Probation, has been telling the Women's Republican Club of Boston's urgent need of more policewomen. There ARE five, she says, there should be twenty, and their entire work should be among juveniles.

"These cases are not for Sunday School teachers, or for public school teachers, they are cases for quick action on the street, on the Common, in the beautiful parkways. I would not attempt to direct the morals of anyone past 21, but when they are little girls of 14 and 15 the story is different.

"The night world is as distinct and different from the world we live in in the daytime as it can be and unless you look about and see it you don't know anything about it."

Commissioner Driscoll says a good word for public dance halls. Many "perfectly respectable" girls patronize them. What she does not know is how to keep out of the dance hall the "good-looking bootlegger" and the "handsome dope pedlar."

WHY are there not more policewomen? This was the commissioner's fourth appearance before the Women's Republican Club, she reminded her audience, in as many years. Discouraged? Not at all. "I go on, because some day I hope there will be one person in my audience who will go forth and stir up public action."

The way to get additional policewomen, it seems to us, is to convince Police Commissioner Wilson of the need. If the police authorities and Mayor Nichols can be made to see the situation as Miss Driscoll sees it, the menace of the park prowler will go the way of all such evils as cannot bear the light of day.

HAS the story been told to the police authorities? What do THEY say about it?

No "Pictures"

Milton, Mass., Pop. 10,000, Votes Itself a Theater

The fact that the town of Milton has waited until the year 1928 for a motion picture theater of its own does not mean that Milton folk have gone without movies all this time.

The chances are that "Doug" and Mary and Charles Spencer Chaplin and the rest are as well-known to the young people of Milton as they are to Young America in general.

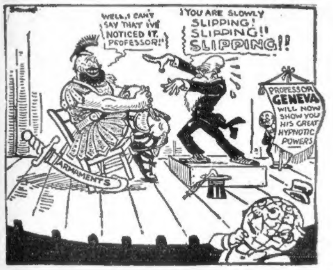
Milton has been deprived of movies at home because the so-called "better element" thought it were better so. A theater would "lower the tone of the community," perhaps have its effect upon realty values, be a "questionable influence."

For a long time these arguments proved effective, but meanwhile Milton was growing to be a community of 10,000 people. When a town reaches that size it can be fed with a spoon no longer.

The entire town is to be congratulated, those who won the movie fight as well as those who appear to have lost it. As a matter of fact both sides are the winners and we look to the level-headed lessee of the new playhouse to prove it by the high standards he sets in management and service no less than by a careful selection of films.

He Doesn't Know It

But Old War Really IS Slipping



WELL, I CAN'T SAY THAT I'VE NOTICED IT, PROFESSOR!"
!YOU ARE SLOWLY SLIPPING! SLIPPING!! SLIPPING!!!
PROFESSOR GENEVA WILL NOW SHOW YOU HIS GREAT HYPNOTIC POWERS
ARMAMENTS

A GENEVA HYPNOTIZING ACT

Here is one of Lord Beaverbrook's interesting cartoons showing old Professor Geneva, the League of Nations hypnotist, trying to persuade Mars, god of war, that he is "slipping." Old War doesn't "notice it." But glaciers moving slowing, but surely, don't know that they are moving either.

Great powers like War, ruling kings, etc., often are slipping the fastest when they least expect it.

One day, Louis the Sixteenth, French king, who subsequently lost his head under the blade of the guillotine, went hunting in the royal preserves, shot nothing, and wrote in his diary that evening the one French word, "Rien," which means "nothing." And that was the day on which the Bastille was torn down, and on which his fate was sealed. He was slipping toward the howling crowd at the guillotine, but he didn't "notice it."

Cannibalism was once entrenched among human beings as firmly as war is entrenched now.

All successful human races were cannibalistic once. Those NOT cannibals were the weak, downtrodden, for in times of famine they had no meat to give their children,

THE NEW CALENDAR AND INERTIA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ATTENTION has been called several times in this column to the efforts being made to have adopted a new calendar having 13 months of 28 days each.

It has been suggested that America have the courage to adopt this standard without waiting for Europe. If it shall be so, if the South American and North American countries unite in their effort to change the calendar it will be another indication that American civilization has definitely broken the bonds still further that heretofore have tied them to the older peoples of Europe.

It is a struggle of common sense and reason against inertia. The power of inertia is enormous. The best reason for doing a thing a certain way still remains that he have always done it that way.

We have got used to the old system, whatever it is. We acknowledge its drawbacks, but we know what they are. We do not know what difficulties an untried plan would involve.

But there seem to be no difficulties in this proposition other than the difficulty of making the change in the first place.

Most of us are familiar with the proposal. It is to have 13 months of 28 days, exactly 4 weeks in each month, making every week day occur on a fixed monthly date and having every holiday occur on the same week day, making calendars unnecessary, having the date of the week indicate the day of the month, adding an extra day to the year and inserting an extra month, the 13th, as a month called Sol between June and July, and adding an extra day every Leap Year to June.

This seems to be a subject that could well be considered by the League of Nations, but it is now proposed that America lead the way without waiting for world consent.

Mr. Cotsworth says that if conservative Europe could discard the computations of hundreds of years and adopt the metric system of weights and measures it is not too much to expect that advanced and efficient America could discard an antique calendar wholly unadapted to this modern age.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE big house at Centerville burned down last night.

They had redecorated it recently—painted it inside and out—and the painters had left a pile of oily rags in a closet under the cellar stairs. No one noticed them. There they stayed, waiting—growing a little warmer every day with their stored up heat. That hot spell last week did the trick. First thing the neighbors knew, the whole place was in a blaze.

"Spontaneous combustion," the firemen said it was. Dangerous waste setting fire to itself through its own sulking heat. Bad business to leave waste like that lying around.

Jim Evans killed Evan Trimbell last week. Jim and Evan had been working neighboring hill farms for the last 20 years. Two grouchy old bachelors, picking along at used-up soil, hating themselves and everyone else more every day.

Fifteen years ago Evans' hens scratched up Jim's early peas, and the feud began. Ever since then they've both nursed grudges. They didn't come right out in the open and quarrel—things might have cleared up if they had. Instead, they stored up their spite and resentments inside themselves. Went around mumbling to themselves. Glaring. Suspecting. Festering. Smoldering. Secretly adding one scrap of hate to another until they were both crammed with malice. Dangerous waste—like those oily rags. And last week they suddenly flamed up. First thing the neighbors knew, Evans was dead and Jim was in jail.

Spontaneous combustion — that's what that murder was. For years these two men had carried around within themselves the makings of murder until the hidden violence flamed into a killing fury.

That's the way wrongdoing always comes. Not suddenly falling on us, out of a clear sky—but flaming up from the wicked waste we've accumulated inside ourselves.

Men don't change into thieves and fiends, cowards and cheats over night. Women don't change into liars and trollops under a sudden pressure of temptation. It takes time for things like that to happen. Little thieving impulses hidden away inside us, in the dark. Secret wallowing in hot, lawless desire or fiendish cruelty. Little acts of cowardice or treachery—these are the makings of theft and murder, deceit and lust—piling up day by day, with each dangerous impulse which we secretly gratify.

Remember that thundering warning—"AS A MAN THINKETH IN HIS HEART, SO IS HE."

ELSIE ROBINSON—
LOOK OUT FOR SPONTANEOUS - COMBUSTION
3-15

That's true. It may take a long time to show up the thing you have hidden in your heart, but sooner or later it will burst into flame.

MEN MUST STEAL AND KILL IN SPIRIT BEFORE THEY CAN STEAL OR KILL IN THE BODY.

WOMEN MUST BE WANTON IN THEIR IMAGINATION BEFORE THEY CAN BECOME WANTON IN THE FLESH.

CRIME IS SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION. IT IS GENERATED IN OUR OWN HIDDEN MALICE.

Better do a little housecleaning. If you're concealing dangerous waste—hate or fear or vicious desire—get rid of it, pronto! If you don't, it will surely destroy you.

A New Yorker's Europe

by

O.O. McINTYRE

MONTE CARLO, March 16—Monte Carlo is admittedly the most magnificent spot along the Riviera. What impresses you most is its scrupulous cleanliness and pin-like neatness.

Fifty years ago it was an uncultivated rock which today is the smallest principality in the world overflowing with animation.

The season is in June and July, but winter finds it crowded with the thousands lured here by the invigorating air, glorious sunshine and wonderful panorama of sheer mountains and sapphire sea. The harbor is dotted with private yachts flying the colors of all nations.

We arrived at the lunch time promenade — Monte Carlo parades before lunch. It is a daily fashion show of what has been called the smartest dressed crowd in the world. Open carriages jog by with women occupants carrying their tiny sun parasols. Men are in braided morning coats.

Every texture of humanity—from the coarsest to the finest—rubs elbows at Monte Carlo. It is a hive of passion, disappointment and strident joy. All its sordid ugliness is hidden with smothering grandeur. You can depend that at least one of the happy arrivals today will attempt a wretched suicide in a fortnight or so.

Two days ago a young American boy bespattered his brains on the Corniche Road with a bullet after losing his entire inheritance in a single night's play, but the news of such incidents never goes beyond Monte Carlo. The administration constantly boasts of its generosity.

This consists in giving those destitute at the gambling tables second class fare back to the nearest large city. About the only news Monte Carlo sends out to the world eagerly is when someone breaks the bank. And this happens to one in perhaps a hundred thousand who lose. If you break the bank, Monte Carlo shows its fine streak of yellow and closes the play.

Yet Monte Carlo has a tranquil side and there are people who live here as quietly and uneventfully as they might in a small town. The matchless terraces and gardens replendent with flowers, lull the visitor to the hideous tragedies the mask of gaiety hides.

THE Casino, the magnificent gambling structure, is flanked on one side by the Hotel de Paris and on the other by the Cafe de Paris. A bold flight of marble steps leads up to its entrance. The only thing the Casino offers free is a writing room where presumably you may send home for more money.

The claim is made the tables are conducted with scrupulous fairness and are above suspicion. Each morning the roulette wheels are subjected—so they say—to minute scientific tests. My own opinion is there never was a strictly honest gambling hall and Monte Carlo is no exception.

If that appears crabid, be patient. I lost $50 in 10 minutes before dinner. That is before the dinner I intended to eat, but somehow appetite vanished. I'm a good loser any place up to a nickel.

THE real nightly play at the Casino begins after dinner—between 9 and 16 o'clock. The crowds gather at the tables in a hushed solemnity which is only broken by the cries of the croupiers in their funereal garb and with pockets tigtly sewed up. They trust those boys, and how!

It is fascinating to watch them scoop up the plaques with their long handled little shovels. Nobody talks out loud in the Casino. Everybody speaks in whispers. Taut describes the atmosphere. At every table are the haggard, feverish faces of the practiced gamblers. Also those incredibly old women whose hands seem claws and who drink deep of fiery brandy and inhale innumerable cigarettes.

AFTER the Casino, a party of us rode in a one-horse carriage toward Mentone to marvel at the ampitheater of lights which fringed the Mediterranean and dotted the hills with flecks of yellow—like fireflies.

WALKING along the Terrace today I accidentally fell in step with a man a furtive glance revealed as Charles M. Schwab—me and Charlie.

He Doesn't Know It

whereas the cannibals always had plenty, or could GET it.

Cannibalism would have laughed at the idea that it could disappear. But it "slipped" and vanished.

The same is true of slavery.

The same will be true of war some day. Once it was the natural condition of practically all the races. A well meaning English statesman could say, without shocking anybody, "I shall be glad when the country is safely back at war again." He thought peace too dangerous, allowing the people to think too much for themselves.

There may be other wars, unfortunately. Another fearful lesson may be necessary to teach Europe that war does not pay, and that the winner must always be a loser.

Let us hope that this country can have the common sense to keep out of that war if it must come and the good judgment to avoid any possibility of war involving US or these continents.

For what OTHERS may do we are not responsible. We are responsible for our own acts.

And if the United States allows itself to become a great swollen money bag, not prepared for defense, not provided with modern weapons, flying machines, submarines and swift cruisers, with UTMOST CONCENTRATION ON DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN FORMS OF WAR, POISON GASES AND HIGH EXPLOSIVES, then we shall get what we deserve.

War IS slipping, it will pass as cannibalism and slavery, the torture of witnesses, and rule by a few "riding on the backs of the many" have passed.

But before war slips away we may slip into war and slip disastrously, if we are not sufficiently well prepared to make war impossible.
